$750 Million Road Bill Gets Senate's OK

2 $200 Million Plans To Aid Schools Drop In Assembly Hopper

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—With out a dissenting vote, the Ohio Senate passed a bill today to appropriate nearly $750 million for next two years, and another $28 million to operate the Department of Highway Safety.

The two measures must return to the House for approval of Senate amendments.

The principal Senate amendments provide for payment of past due amounts to the Public Employees Retirement Fund.

Two proposals to float $200-million bond issues for new university buildings and to meet emergency public school classroom needs were offered in the Senate Wednesday.

Bond issues seem to the sponsors the only way around the immediate construction impasse because the two-year budget submitted by Gov. James A. Rhodes allows nothing for building needs.

While the Senate was receiving practically twin proposals for building needs, the House was debating—again—a bill to require at least annual safety inspections of motor vehicles. The compulsory inspection measure mustered only 50 favorable votes against 72 opposed.

The House completed legislative action on an emergency bill to guarantee that midway games of skill will be permitted at this year's county and state fairs. The bill, offered to overcome last year's attorney general ruling that such games constitute gambling, will be effective as soon as the governor signs it.

The House also passed a bill to exempt water and air pollution control facilities from the state's 3 per cent sales tax.

The Senate virtually completed legislative action on a bill to restore to the law a section, apparently repealed by error two years ago, which allows charter cities to assess against property owners the full cost of street maintenance, sweeping and sprinkling along with snow and tree removal.

The Senate passed and sent to the House measures to:

Permit persons who feel aggrieved to appeal directly from a probate court to an appellate court if a record has been taken in the

New 3-Man State Liquor Board Named

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes signed an emergency act today creating a new state liquor commission.

The act, recently approved by the legislature, abolishes a four-member liquor board and replaces it with a three-man commission.

Appointees to the new commission were:

Chairman Kenneth E. Thomas, Republican of nearby Grove City, for a term ending Feb. 10, 1969.

Vice Chairman Bernard T. Chupka, Republican of Columbus, for a term ending Feb. 13, 1967.

J. Maynard Dickerson, Democrat of Youngstown, for a term ending Feb. 8, 1968.

Terms of all three commission members start Friday, the announcement said. All are attorneys.

Thomas recently was appointed by the governor as chairman of the liquor board and will continue in that capacity on the commission.

Chupka is chief of the highway legal section in the attorney general's office. Before that he was city prosecutor here.

Dickerson was chairman of the industrial commission and resigned to accept his new appointment.

DIEFENBAKER WAVES OUT—Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker waves as his car leaves Government House in Ottawa, Ont., where he had tendered his resignation to Gov.-Gen. George Vanier, effective at noon Monday, April 22. A sudden shift in political alliance meanwhile left his successor, Lester B. Pearson, without a majority government.

Pearson Named Canadian Premier

OTTAWA (AP)—Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson will take the oath as Canada's 14th prime minister Monday, heading the country's second successive government without guaranteed majority support in the House of Commons.

Gov. Gen. Georges P. Vanier named Pearson to take over after Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker resigned, effective Monday.

His Conservative party trailed Pearson's Liberals in the national elections April 8.

After his conference with Vanier Pearson said he hopes to meet with President Kennedy late this month or early in May. He said

Stewardesses Fight Airline Limit on Age

NEW YORK (AP)—"So at 35 do I look like an old bag?"

Asking the question Wednesday was an American Airlines stewardess, Dusty Roads, 5 feet 8, shapely—36-24-36—weighing 125 pounds, and a natural blonde.

The stewardesses at American are fighting the clause in the union contract which stipulates that the girls must resign at age 32. Miss Roads is exempt because the age embargo went into effect Dec. 1, 1953—and Dusty was flying for American before that.

The union's contract expired last June and negotiations have failed to bring agreement on a new pact. The age clause is a key issue.

A company spokesman said 10 of the airline's 1,500 stewardesses are approaching the 32-mark this year.

Nancy Collins, master executive chairman of the American Airlines unit of the Airlines Stewardesses Association of the AFL-CIO Transport Workers Union, says that isn't so. She contends the number of almost 32 is nearer 100.

The American spokesman said that being a stewardess is a younger girl's type of job.

The girls said they have slogan for their fight:

"Too old to fly—too young for Social Security."

Argentina Halts Communist Plot

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The Interior Ministry announced today seven close advisers of deposed President Arturo Frondizi have been arrested on charges of plotting a Communist revolution in Argentina.

It said eight other men are being sought.

Frondizi is a semipolitical prisoner in the southern Argentine mountain resort of Bariloche. He was overthrown March 28, 1952 by military leaders who blamed him for election victories posted by followers of ex-president Juan D. Peron.

Mrs. Khazen, wife of a sheikh who is a graduate engineer, took over her father's seat in the House of Deputies.

School Board Agrees State Support Needed

Proposal Would Provide $80,000 in Operating Funds for City Schools

The Circleville Board of Education, together with boards of education throughout Ohio, has expressed great concern regarding proposed state support for public education.

The State Board of Education has proposed an improved program which consists of a two-year $85 million improvement of the Foundation Program plus expansion of vocational, technical and other programs raising the total to $92 million. Emergency construction aid of $35 million is also recommended.

The program is sound, according to local board spokesmen. If adopted as proposed it would provide approximately $80,000 additional funds for Circleville City School operating purposes, they claim.

Monies for operating funds to improve public education can come from state tax sources or local property taxes. The local property tax has proportionately increased its support of the total operating cost during the past 10 years, Circleville Board members stated.

They noted that State support has decreased from approximately 50 per cent to the present 31 or 32 per cent. Bond issues for building purposes must be supported by local property taxes, the board declared. Therefore increased state support for operation relieves the local property owner of an additional burden, members said.

The Circleville Board of Education feels that increased taxes from State sources are necessary to finance educational improvements. The sales tax appears to be the more realistic source of immediate tax funds, members

Hospital Gets OK To Sue City for Bill

CLEVELAND (AP)—A judge has ruled a hospital may sue a community to recover costs for treating an emergency patient who resides in the community and claims he is unable to pay.

The ruling Wednesday by Common Pleas Court Judge Saul Danaceau could set a precedent and open the doors for new budgetary problems for cities throughout Ohio. The judge said he was aware of that problem.

The case involves Angelo Spadaro of Suburban Maple Heights, who was taken to University Hospital after suffering a heart attack in November 1961. The hospital sued Maple Heights for $1,001 for 22 days of care it gave Spadaro when he claimed he was indigent.

Maple Heights argued against the suit, contending it was invalid because the city never authorized payment of Spadaro's bill. The judge overruled this plea and ordered the case could go to trial.

Sheriff William S. Proctor said Elam was served eviction papers after Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Allen told Judge Coleman Wright that no payment had been made on the property occupied by Elam, his wife and three children.

Brickbats Fly In Fair Dispute

Sandies Dares Rhodes To Run State Exhibit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Verbal brickbats continued to fly today between the Republican state administration and Bryan P. Sandies, Democrat who coupled his resignation from the Ohio Exposition Commission with a charge that Gov. James A. Rhodes is trying to run the State Fair.

The governor has remained silent in the dispute that flared two days ago when Sandies, also president of the Ohio Fair Managers Association, claimed he was pressured into resigning from the commission by a Rhodes cabinet member.

Informing at his Springfield home Wednesday night that the administration had denied the charge, Sandies let go with another angry blast.

"My personal feeling is that if Mr. Rhodes wants to run the State Fair, maybe he can get his bill through the legislature to appoint a 13-member commission which will then make him State Fair manager," Sandies said, adding:

"Then he can give the governor's office back to the people of Ohio."

The present commission, created in 1961 to put the annual State Fair on a paying basis, has 16 members equally representing both political parties.

The denial that Sandies was pressured into resigning came from Fred E. Morr, who headed the Agriculture Department until last Tuesday when he became director of natural resources.

Morr said that as early as last January and on several occasions thereafter "Mr. Sandies asked me to inform the governor that he wished to resign in the best interests of the commission and the Ohio Fair Managers Association."

Storms Wane After Raking Midwest Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Storms diminished across the Midwest today after destructive tornadoes and damaging thunderstorms ripped across areas in Illinois, Indiana and Michigan. One person was killed, scores were injured and property damage was extensive. Some 200 persons were made temporarily homeless.

The hardest hit region was in the area of Kankakee, Ill., a city of some 28,000 about 45 miles south of Chicago. A tornado cut a path 300 yards wide and 3 miles long, first striking on the edge of Kankakee and skipping into nearby Bourbonnais and five other communities.

Bourbonnais, a community of 3,335, suffered the heaviest property damage, estimated at $2 million by Leon Blandette, village president. Sandra Rivard, 24, was killed as she fled from her home with her three-month old daughter.

The infant and some 60 other persons in the area were injured, 10 seriously. About 200 persons were forced from their wrecked and damaged homes. The storm caused extensive damage to buildings on the campus of Olivet College.

The twister moved eastward into northern Indiana, across northern Jasper County, injuring 18 persons and causing an estimated $300,000 damage to property. Three of the injured were reported in critical condition. All of the injured live near Gifford, 10 miles northeast of Rensselaer.

City Ordinance Is Declared Unconstitutional by Court

A city ordinance prohibiting door-to-door soliciting and peddling was declared unconstitutional this week by Municipal Judge Sterling M. Lamb.

Judge Lamb's ruling was reached in the case of John A. Williams vs. the City of Circleville. The ordinance (No. 70-58) was passed by Circleville Council on Oct. 21, 1952.

Williams was arrested May 22, 1962, by city police for selling encyclopedias here. He was represented by Peter Dunkle Jr., a Columbus attorney who contended the ordinance was unconstitutional.

It was agreed, with the courts permission, to decide the case after briefs had been submitted.

HOWEVER, Kenneth Robbins, city solicitor, did not submit a brief. He later stated to the court it was his opinion as city prosecutor to consider the ordinance unconstitutional.

In brief, Section No. 4 of the ordinance prohibits solicitors or peddlers from going in or upon private residences without an invitation or request to do so. According to the law, this practice constitutes a nuisance and to do so is punishable as a misdemeanor.

Violation of the law calls for a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $100 or imprisonment not to exceed six months or both.

Judge Lamb, in describing his decision, claimed the mere act of going on a property to sell could not be considered a nuisance, although peddlers may make themselves a nuisance after they have entered a house.

He cited a state statute permitting municipalities to license transient dealers. He asserted the city law is in conflict with this statute.

He also cited the case of the city of Washington C. H. vs. Charles Thompson in which the Third District Court of Appeals held a similar ordinance unconstitutional.

IN THE Washington C. H. case the Court quoted from the Ohio Jurisprudence code a section stating: "the rights to follow any of the common occupations of livelihood is one of the fundamental rights of citizenship."

Police Chief Robert Temple voiced a note of disappointment after learning the ordinance had been declared unconstitutional.

"We have always tried to discourage door-to-door salesmen and solicitors here, particularly transients," he commented. "This opens the city up to these people."

"Circleville has a large percentage of day sleepers—persons who work nights—who do not want to be disturbed," the chief also pointed out in giving reasons

Ill-Fated Sub's Prior Troubles Are Revealed

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP)—The electrical officer of the ill-fated nuclear submarine Thresher dramatically testified today the ship experienced many mechanical difficulties up to the eve of her sailing for what was to become a fatal test dive.

The testimony was given by Lt. Raymond McCoolle, 33, who would have been the Thresher's 130th victim except for a stroke of fate.

McCoolle said that on the night of April 8, the day before the Thresher sailed for its rendezvous with disaster, crewmen and shipyard workers were correcting what he described as sail and rudder planes.

Testifying haltingly at a Navy court of inquiry, McCoolle said a fast-cruise test of the Thresher which began on March 23 was cut short by the skipper, Cmdr. John W. Harvey, because of the discovery of deficiencies.

He said Harvey called the ship's officers to a meeting at sea and told them he was halting the fast-cruise test because of work items and deficiencies discovered.

The electrical officer did not make the fatal voyage because of an injury to his wife, the mother of five children. He had been granted emergency leave.

for not wanting peddlers operating in the community.

"My advice to these people now is to post their properties with 'no soliciting allowed' signs and to do business only with persons they know or with established reputable firms."

The chief expressed a desire to have enacted some form of controlling legislation concerning transient peddlers.

The case in Municipal Court against Williams was dismissed. No costs were charged and the $19 appearance bond previously posted by the defendant was returned.

Youth Wounded Fleeing Reds

Stolen Armored Car Used To Smash Wall

BERLIN (AP)—An East German youth who smashed through the Red wall here in an East German army armored car Wednesday night was reported in satisfactory condition today with a bullet wound in his chest.

A doctor said if everything goes well, he will be out of the hospital in three weeks.

Wolfgang Engels, 19, suffered wounds in his chest and hand and multiple cuts and abrasions.

His daring escape was the talk of West Berlin today.

Engels took the Soviet-made armored car out of the East German army garage where he worked as a civilian mechanic.

Shortly before 8 o'clock Wednesday night, he careened down the east side of Elsenstrasse toward the wall, shouting, "I am going over! Who wants to go with me?"

Communist border guards fired their weapons as the nine-gun vehicle plowed into the first concrete barrier. The impact sprung the rear armor-plated doors and two bullets hit Engels.

The car got stuck in the second wall, which forms the border with West Berlin.

Unable to crawl through the hole because the car was blocking it, the wounded youth climbed atop the seven-foot wall, shouting for help.

As the East Berlin guards kept firing, the youth got tangled in the barbed wire atop the wall, then pitched forward and hit the sidewalk in the West Berlin district of Neukölln, in the American sector.

A lone West Berlin policeman, on patrol near the scene, fired several shots into the East sector in an attempt to give the youth cover. The officer was slightly injured by concrete fragments splintered off the wall by the East German bullets.

Angry West Berliners were held back from the wall by West Berlin police. Many shouted "Pigs!" and "Murderers!" as the East German guards pulled the armored car out of the debris.

Executive, Unionist Face Prison Terms

DETROIT (AP)—Eighteen months in jail and $10,000 fines are in store for a Youngstown, Ohio, trucking company executive and a Teamsters Union official for illegal payoffs on a trucking contract.

Sentenced Wednesday in federal court were Willard F. Wolff Sr., 51, president of the Youngstown Cartage Co., and Rolland B. McMaster, 49, of Wixom, Mich., secretary-treasurer of Detroit Teamsters' Local 299. They had been convicted on 32 counts of violating the Taft-Hartley Act between 1956 and 1959.

The government alleged that the Wolff paid McMaster $8,823 during that time as "rent" for a truck trailer when actually it was "a payment to insure labor peace."

He said Harvey called the ship's officers to a meeting at sea and told them he was halting the fast-cruise test because of work items and deficiencies discovered.

The electrical officer did not make the fatal voyage because of an injury to his wife, the mother of five children. He had been granted emergency leave.

Sgt. York Still Critical

Miro Document Coming Tonight

Keating Renews Fire At Kennedy Claims

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The embattled head of the Cuban Revolutionary Council is expected to make public tonight a document in which he reportedly charged the United States with bad faith.

Dr. Jose Miro Cardona may or may not be council president when he reveals his 20-page statement—in the form of a letter of resignation over lack of action against Fidel Castro. Its release is expected at a meeting of the council whose members refused last week to let Miro quit.

Miro has been at loggerheads with the administration since a Washington conference in which he is said to have demanded action against Castro or money to equip a Cuban exile invasion army.

He said the State Department asked him to withhold his letter from publication so that differences between the government and the council could be resolved. But, said Miro, the State Department also heaped abuse on him.

"As a result, I feel free to make public the document," he said.

In the meanwhile, he a direct challenge of President Kennedy's reassurances on Soviet troop withdrawals, Sen. Kenneth B. Keating charged today there has been "no substantial reduction" of Soviet military forces in Cuba since mid-November.

Keating, a New York Republican, said in a speech prepared for the American Society of Newspaper Editors that he has information that new Soviet arrivals have about matched the departures.

"There were and are in the neighborhood of 17,000 men there," said the senator. "No functional units have been withdrawn."

Kennedy, who will address the editors' annual meeting Friday, told his April 3 news conference that some 4,000 Soviet troops had left in the preceding month, in addition to the 5,000 pulled out in November.

Auto Bomb Try Foiled

CLEVELAND (AP)—Two men appeared to be wiring a bomb into the car of a Cleveland Heights paint company executive Wednesday night fled when the car's owner caught them at it and his wife screamed, police reported.

Ralph A. Katz, president of American Pliable Metals Corp., and his wife, Beatrice, were returning to the car after visiting friends. They saw one man inside the car and the other man tinkering under the hood.

Katz demanded to know what the men were doing. The man in the car got out, drew a gun and attempted to force Katz into the auto, police said. Mrs. Katz screamed and fled, and the two men also fled.

Police said the distributor cap on the motor had been removed and the wire to the starter disengaged. This method is used to dynamite cars, police explained.

Fire Kills Pair In Marion Plant

MARION, Ohio (AP)—Workers who responded when an automatic fire alarm and sprinkler system went off today found the burned bodies of two men in the paint room of the Whirlpool Corp. plant.

Officials said both bodies were burned beyond recognition. The victims were identified as Ralph L. Harroff, 47, Marion, and his cousin, Walter W. Flant, also 47, of near Caledonia.

Both men checked in at 1:10 a.m. to install ventilating fans in the paint room. The alarm sounded about 3 a.m., and the sprinklers virtually put out the fire.

It's theorized that a spark from welding equipment may have set off a flash fire which engulfed the pair, or else the clothing of one or both may somehow have ignited.

Evicted Man Goes On Arson Binge

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—A farmer, enraged because he was evicted from his home, burned three barns and then drove 40 miles to Lexington where he set fire to a house and a store Wednesday, police said.

David M. Elam 36, of Waddy, was arrested and charged with three counts of malicious burning. Lexington officials said they are preparing warrants against Elam for arson.

Sheriff William S. Proctor said Elam was served eviction papers after Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Allen told Judge Coleman Wright that no payment had been made on the property occupied by Elam, his wife and three children.

Maple Heights argued against the suit, contending it was invalid because the city never authorized payment of Spadaro's bill. The judge overruled this plea and ordered the case could go to trial.

Brickbats Fly In Fair Dispute

Sandies Dares Rhodes To Run State Exhibit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Verba, brickbats continued to fly today between the Republican state administration and Bryan P. Sandies, Democrat who coupled his resignation from the Ohio Expositions Commission with a charge that Gov. James A. Rhodes is trying to run the State Fair.

The governor has remained silent in the dispute that flared two days ago when Sandies, also president of the Ohio Fair Managers Association, claimed he was pressured into resigning from the commission by a Rhodes cabinet member.

Informed at his Springfield home Wednesday night that the administration had denied the charge, Sandies let go with another angry blast.

"My personal feeling is that if Mr. Rhodes wants to run the State Fair, maybe he can get his bill through the legislature to appoint a 13-member commission which will then make him State Fair manager," Sandies said, adding:

"Then he can give the governor's office back to the people of Ohio."

The present commission, created in 1961 to put the annual State Fair on a paying basis, has 16 members equally representing both political parties.

The denial that Sandies was pressured into resigning came from Fred E. Morr, who headed the Agriculture Department until last Tuesday when he became director of natural resources.

Morr said that as early as last January and on several occasions thereafter "Mr. Sandies asked me to inform the governor that he wished to resign in the best interests of the commission and the Ohio Fair Managers Association."

Storms Wane After Raking Midwest Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Storms diminished across the Midwest today after destructive tornadoes and damaging thunderstorms ripped across areas in Illinois, Indiana and Michigan. One person was killed, scores were injured and property damage was extensive. Some 200 persons were made temporarily homeless.

The hardest hit region was in the area of Kankakee, Ill., a city of some 28,000 of 45 miles south of Chicago. A tornado cut a path 300 yards wide and 3 miles long, first striking on the edge of Kankakee and skipping into nearby Bourbonnais and five other communities.

Bourbonnais, a community of 3,335, suffered the heaviest property damage, estimated at $2 million by Leon Blandette, village president. Sandra Rivard, 24, was killed as she fled from her home with her three-month old daughter.

The infant and some 60 other persons in the area were injured, 10 seriously. About 200 persons were forced from their wrecked and damaged homes. The storm caused extensive damage to buildings on the campus of Olivet College.

The twister moved eastward into northern Indiana, across northern Jasper County, injuring 18 persons and causing an estimated $300,000 damage to property. Three of the injured were reported in critical condition. All of the injured live near Gifford, 10 miles northeast of Rensselaer.

Panama To Urge U.S. To Abandon Canal Zone

PANAMA (AP)—Panama will urge the United States to abandon control of the Canal Zone and turn the strip back to the Panamanians, David Samudio, planning director, said today.

Samudio said the Panamanian government is content to have the United States continue operating the Panama Canal, but it wants Panamanians to take over industrial and commercial operations in the zone.

City Ordinance Is Declared Unconstitutional by Court

A city ordinance prohibiting door-to-door soliciting and peddling was declared unconstitutional this week by Municipal Judge Sterling M. Lamb.

Judge Lamb's ruling was reached in the case of John A. Williams vs the City of Circleville. The ordinance (No. 70-58) was passed by Circleville Council on Oct. 21, 1957.

Williams was arrested May 22, 1962, by city police for selling encyclopedias here. He was represented by Peter Dunkle Jr., a Columbus attorney who contended the ordinance was unconstitutional.

It was agreed, with the courts permission, to decide the case after briefs had been submitted.

HOWEVER, Kenneth Robbins, city solicitor, did not submit a brief. He later stated to the court it was his opinion as city prosecutor to consider the ordinance unconstitutional.

In brief, Section No. 4 of the ordinance prohibits solicitors or peddlers from going in or upon private residences without an invitation or request to do so. According to the law, this practice constitutes a nuisance and to do so is punishable as a misdemeanor.

Violation of the law calls for a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $100 or imprisonment not to exceed six months or both.

Judge Lamb, in describing his decision, claimed the mere act of going on a property to sell could not be considered a nuisance, although peddlers may make themselves a nuisance after they have entered a house.

He cited a state statute permitting municipalities to license transient dealers. He asserted the city law is in conflict with this statute.

He also cited the case of the city of Washington C. H. vs Charles Thompson in which the Third District Court of Appeals held a similar ordinance unconstitutional.

IN THE Washington C. H. case the Court quoted from the Ohio Jurisprudence code a section stating: "the rights to follow any of the common occupations of livelihood is one of the fundamental rights of citizenship."

Police Chief Robert Temple voiced a note of disappointment after learning the ordinance had been declared unconstitutional.

"We have always tried to discourage door-to-door salesmen and solicitors here, particularly transients," he commented. "This opens the city up to these people."

"Circleville has a large percentage of day sleepers—persons who work nights—who do not want to be disturbed," the chief also pointed out in giving reasons

Ill-Fated Sub's Prior Troubles Are Revealed

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP)—The electrical officer of the ill-fated nuclear submarine Thresher dramatically testified today the ship experienced many mechanical difficulties up to the eve of her sailing for what was to become a fatal test dive.

The testimony was given by Lt. Raymond McCoolle, 33, who would have been the Thresher's 130th victim except for a stroke of fate.

McCoolle said that on the night of April 8, the day before the Thresher sailed for its rendezvous with disaster, crewmen and shipyard workers were correcting what he described as sail and rudder planes.

Testifying haltingly at a Navy court of inquiry, McCoolle said a fast-cruise test of the Thresher which began on March 23 was cut short by the skipper, Cmdr. John W. Harvey, because of the discovery of deficiencies.

He said Harvey called the ship's officers to a meeting at sea and told them he was halting the fast-cruise test because of work items and deficiencies discovered.

The electrical officer did not make the fatal voyage because of an injury to his wife, the mother of five children. He had been granted emergency leave.

Miro Document Coming Tonight

Keating Renews Fire At Kennedy Claims

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The embattled head of the Cuban Revolutionary Council is expected to make public tonight a document in which he reportedly charged the United States with bad faith.

Dr. Jose Miro Cardona may or may not be council president when he reveals his 20-page statement—in the form of a letter of resignation over lack of action against Fidel Castro. Its release is expected at a meeting of the council whose members refused last week to let Miro quit.

Miro has been at loggerheads with the administration since a Washington conference in which he is said to have demanded action against Castro or money to equip a Cuban exile invasion army.

He said the State Department asked him to withhold his letter from publication so that differences between the government and the council could be resolved. But, said Miro, the State Department also heaped abuse on him. "As a result, I feel free to make public the document," he said.

In the meanwhile, is a direct challenge of President Kennedy's reassurances on Soviet troop withdrawals. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating charged today there has been "no substantial reduction" of Soviet military forces in Cuba since mid-November.

Keating, a New York Republican, said in a speech prepared for the American Society of Newspaper Editors that he has information that new Soviet arrivals have about matched the departures.

"There were and are in the neighborhood of 17,000 men there," said the senator. "No functional units have been withdrawn."

Kennedy, who will address the editors' annual meeting Friday, told his April 3 news conference that some 4,000 Soviet troops had left in the preceding month, in addition to the 5,000 pulled out in November.

Auto Bomb Try Foiled

CLEVELAND (AP)—Two men appeared to be wiring a bomb into the car of a Cleveland Heights paint company executive Wednesday night when the car's owner caught them at it and his wife screamed, police reported.

Ralph A. Katz, president of American Pliable Metals Corp., and his wife, Beatrice, were returning to the car after visiting friends. They saw one man inside the car and the other man tinkering under the hood.

Katz demanded to know what the men were doing. The man in the car got out, drew a gun and attempted to force Katz into the auto, police said. Mrs. Katz screamed and fled, and the two men also fled.

Police said the distributor cap on the motor had been removed and the wire to the starter disengaged. This method is used to dynamite cars, police explained.

Fire Kills Pair In Marion Plant

MARION, Ohio (AP)—Workers who responded when an automatic fire alarm and sprinkler system went off today found the burned bodies of two men in the paint room of the Whirlpool Corp. plant.

Officials said both bodies were burned beyond recognition. The victims were identified as Ralph L. Harruff, 47, Marion, and his cousin, Walter W. Flant, also 47, of near Caledonia.

Both men checked in at 1:10 a.m. to install ventilating fans in the paint room. The alarm sounded about 3 a.m., and the sprinklers virtually put out the fire.

It's theorized that a spark from welding equipment may have set off a flash fire which engulfed the pair, or else the clothing of one or both may somehow have ignited.

over Soviet missile bases in Cuba, there were an estimated 21,000 to 22,000 Soviet troops on the island. So the President's report indicated a remaining total of only 12,000 or 13,000.

Keating—resuming with relish his role as a foremost Republican critic of Kennedy's Cuban policies—drew a fresh on the undisclosed intelligence sources with which he has been challenging the administration for months.

"Several thousand personnel have left Cuba, several thousand more have arrived," he said.

"Furthermore, they should not be called troops when they are on their way out and technicians when they are on their way in.

"There is no reliable evidence whatsoever of a decline in Soviet military strength or capability since those first withdrawals in November."

He charged also that some U.S. Navy ships have specific orders not to searchlight the small vessels which he said constantly ply Cuban and Caribbean waters at night. He mentioned "Navy personnel" as his source of this information.

Despite U.S. surveillance designed to block the shipment from Cuba of weapons, personnel and other tools of subversion to other Latin-American countries, Keating told the editors:

"None of these ships are ever searched by U.S. patrols.

"How can we hope to get evidence of support of subversion," he went on, "if we don't investigate these small scale but very numerous operations?"

"I have never been impressed by the view that we are going to gain any concessions by relaxing pressure on the Soviets."

Keating was the first major speaker before the 450 editors who, later in the afternoon were to hear from the administration's first team in foreign policy—Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Undersecretaries George W. Ball and W. Averell Harriman.

Housewife Given All Groceries She Can Grab in 30 Minutes

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — What happened to Mrs. Wade Poffenberger of Miamisburg Wednesday was a housewife's dream.

But Mrs. Poffenberger was wide awake, and she walked out of a local supermarket with $1,537.95 worth of free groceries amid the cheers of an enthusiastic audience.

It all came about when Mrs. Poffenberger won a contest by writing 25 words or less why she liked a brand of canned hams.

As winner, she was set free in a supermarket in suburban Kettering, and at no cost, was permitted, with one helper, to grab off the shelves all the groceries she could rush to the checkout lane in 30 minutes.

For her helper, she chose her 14-year-old son, Danny.

She had no prepared grocery list, no strategy. Her son was to keep her supplied with empty carts.

Before the start, she said her greatest fear was "I would get over there and freeze up." But she added: "I'm going to start at the first aisle and just work my way grabbing everything I can get my hands on."

A hush fell over the big crowd in the market as the timer raised his arm and started a countdown.

Mother and son set off. Neither daltied. Liquid detergents displayed in boxes at the front of the first aisle were grabbed, boxes and all. In less than one minute cart No. 2 was nearly full.

Mrs. Poffenberger's only noticeable slump came after her first original spree on the detergents. She started walking up an aisle taking two cans of this, two cans of that, she would pause, look at labels and even pick items up and change her mind.

The crowd, like an arena full of spectators, got anxious. "Faster, faster," they shouted. "Don't fool around with that little stuff. Show those things off the shelves. Hurry."

Mrs. Poffenberger and her son did. They soon got into the swing and from that point on there was no stopping the housewife. She even managed to show some selectivity in wading through 6,900 items on the shelves. She went heavy on detergents, coffee, fruit juices, salad dressings, sugar, tea, and flour, even making brand preferences. She practically emptied the shelves of the gourmet food section.

Officials of the contest said she broke all records. She filled 33 carts took home 16,380 trading stamps in addition to the groceries.

It took a checkout girl an hour and 16 minutes to check out the food, and when finished she had 794 feet of cash register tape.

Stock Market Moves Higher

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market recovered from an early loss and moved irregularly higher early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active.

Rails, aerospace issues, nonferrous metals and some of the more speculative oils moved higher.

Steels were uneven, showing minor changes, now that most of the leading steel companies have fallen in line with the selective price boosts.

Trading interest was strong in some of the merger or "takeover" candidates among the oils. Sunray DX Oil was especially active rising a fraction and making a strong bid to top the entire list on volume.

Chrysler traded about unchanged in an indifferent motors section. Tobacco, drugs and utilities were irregular.

School Board

contend, adding that this can be accomplished by increasing the rate and broadening the base.

In addition to needed new building facilities, Circleville City Schools are in need of expanded program and maintenance especially in the areas of increased guidance in grades 7 and 8; home economics and industrial arts in grades 7 and 8; elementary physical education; art in grades 7-12; libraries and books in elementary and junior high school; remedial reading; elementary co-ordinator; expansion of educational TV program; language laboratories for the high school; improved high school library; and general building maintenance program.

These were a few of the current needs listed by the Board for Circleville schools.

Legislators are understandably reluctant to vote a tax increase unless they are convinced the voters really want them to support an increase for schools was the opinion voiced by the board here.

The local body emphasized that citizens should be aware of the educational needs of each school district. The fact that unless state financial sources are available to support education, local taxes will have to carry the full load was another key observation.

In view of these studies, the local Board has requested all citizens to make their opinions and desires known to the State Legislature as soon as possible.

Harral Named To Honorary

William M. Harral, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar A. Harral of Route 1, has been initiated into Techniki Engineering Honorary at the Faculty Club of the Ohio State University.

This was the termination of his pledge duty which began with a tapping ceremony and presentation to the students and faculty of the Engineering College at the Engineers' Prom on Feb. 16. During the interim period the pledges were required to present technical papers and finish their membership plaques.

Techniki was founded in 1926 to recognize engineering students who have proven themselves competent in their academic work and distinguished themselves as campus leaders through extracurricular activities.

Membership is limited to one-half of one percent of the enrollment of full-time students in the professional division of the Engineering College. This year twenty students were initiated, which brings the total number of initiates to 346 over the period of thirty-six years since the founding of Techniki.

Nelsonville Newswoman Dies Unexpectedly at 46

NELSONVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Alice Kunzman, 46, assistant editor of the Nelsonville Tribune, died late Wednesday night. Friends said she suffered a stroke earlier this year, but appeared to be recovering.

over Soviet missile bases in Cuba, there were an estimated 21,000 to 22,000 Soviet troops on the island. So the President's report indicated a remaining total of only 12,000 or 13,000.

Keating—resuming with relish his role as a foremost Republican critic of Kennedy's Cuban policies—drew afresh on the undiscovered intelligence sources with which he has been challenging the administration for months.
"Several thousand personnel have left Cuba, several thousand more have arrived," he said.
"Furthermore, they should not be called troops when they are on their way out and technicians when they are on their way in."
"There is no reliable evidence whatsoever of a decline in Soviet military strength or capability since those first withdrawals in November."

He charged also that some U.S. Navy ships have specific orders not to searchlight the small vessels which he said constantly ply Cuban and Caribbean waters at night. He mentioned "Navy personnel" as his source of this information.

Despite U.S. surveillance designed to block the shipment from Cuba of "weapons, personnel and other tools of subversion" to other Latin-American countries, Keating told the editors:
"None of these ships are ever searched by U.S. patrols."
"How can we hope to get evidence of support of subversion," he went on, "if we don't investigate these small scale but very numerous operations?"
"I have never been impressed by the view that we are going to gain any concessions by relaxing pressure on the Soviets."

Keating was the first major speaker before the 450 editors who, later in the afternoon were to hear from the administration's first team in foreign policy—Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Undersecretaries George W. Ball and W. Averell Harriman.

Housewife Given All Groceries She Can Grab in 30 Minutes

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — What happened to Mrs. Wade Poffenberger of Miamisburg Wednesday was a housewife's dream.

But Mrs. Poffenberger was wide awake, and she walked out of a local supermarket with $1,637.95 worth of free groceries amid the cheers of an enthusiastic audience.

It all came about when Mrs. Poffenberger won a contest by writing 25 words or less why she liked a brand of canned hams.

As winner, she was set free in a supermarket in suburban Kettering, and at no cost, was permitted, with one helper, to grab off the shelves all the groceries she could rush to the checkout lane in 30 minutes.

For her helper, she chose her 14-year-old son, Danny. She had no prepared grocery list, no strategy. Her son was to keep her supplied with empty carts.

Before the start, she said her greatest fear was "I would get over there and freeze up." But she added: "I'm going to start at the first aisle and just work my way grabbing everything I can get my hands on."

A hush fell over the big crowd in the market as the timer raised his arm and started a countdown.

Mother and son set off. Neither dalled. Liquid detergents displayed in boxes at the front of the first aisle were grabbed, boxes and all. In less than one minute cart No. 2 was nearly full.

Mrs. Poffenberger's only noticeable slump came after her first original spree on the detergents. She started walking up an aisle taking two cans of this, two cans of that, she would pause, look at labels and even pick items up and change her mind.

The crowd, like an arena full of spectators, got anxious. "Faster, faster," they shouted. "Don't fool around with that little stuff. Shove those things off the shelves. Hurry."

Mrs. Poffenberger and her son did. They soon got into the swing and from that point on there was no stopping the housewife. She even managed to show some selectivity in wading through 6,000 items on the shelves. She went heavy on detergents, coffee, fruit juices, salad dressings, sugar, tea, and flour, even making brand preferences. She practically emptied the shelves of the gourmet food section.

Officials of the contest said she broke all records. She filled 33 carts took home 16,380 trading stamps in addition to the groceries.

It took a checkout girl an hour and 16 minutes to check out the food, and when finished she had 794 feet of cash register tape.

Stock Market Moves Higher

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market recovered from an early loss and moved irregularly higher early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active.

Rails, aerospace issues, nonferrous metals and some of the more speculative oils moved higher.

Steels were uneven, showing minor changes, now that most of the leading steel companies have fallen in line with its selective price boosts.

Trading interest was strong in some of the merger or "takeover" candidates among the oils. Sunray DX Oil was especially active rising a fraction and making a strong bid to top the entire list on volume.

Chrysler traded about unchanged in an indifferent motors section. Tobaccos, drugs and utilities were irregular.

contend, adding that this can be accomplished by increasing the rate and broadening the base.

In addition to needed new building facilities, Circleville City Schools are in need of expanded program and maintenance especially in the areas of increased guidance in grades 7 and 8; home economics and industrial arts in grades 7 and 8; elementary physical education; art in grades 7-12; libraries and books in elementary and junior high school; remedial reading; elementary co-ordinator; expansion of educational TV program; language laboratories for the high school; improved high school library; and general building maintenance program.

These were a few of the current needs listed by the Board for Circleville schools.

Legislators are understandably reluctant to vote a tax increase unless they are convinced the voters really want them to support an increase for schools was the opinion voiced by the board here.

The local body emphasized that citizens should be aware of the educational needs of each school district. The fact that unless state financial sources are available to support education, local taxes will have to carry the full load was another key observation.

In view of these studies, the local Board has requested all citizens to make their opinions and desires known to the State Legislature as soon as possible.

Harral Named To Honorary

William M. Harral, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar A. Harral of Route 1, has been initiated into Techniko Engineering Honorary at the Faculty Club of the Ohio State University.

This was the termination of his pledge duty which began with a tapping ceremony and presentation to the students and faculty of the Engineering College at the Engineers' Prom on Feb. 16. During the interim period the pledges were required to present technical papers and finish their membership plaques.

Techniko was founded in 1926 to recognize engineering students who have proven themselves competent in their academic work and distinguished themselves as campus leaders through extracurricular activities.

Membership is limited to one-half of one percent of the enrollment of full-time students in the professional division of the Engineering College. This year twenty students were initiated, which brings the total number of initiates to 346 over the period of thirty-six years since the founding of Techniko.

Price Squeeze Tied to Farm Size Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said today various economic studies show that a major factor in the increasing size of U. S. farms is what it calls a squeeze between prices farmers receive and production costs.

"In order to cope with the cost-price squeeze, even the larger farmer generally will try to expand his business," the department said a report.

The number of farms in this country has declined from 5,197,500 in 1932 to 3,688,100 in 1962, although the total amount of land in the farms has changed very little.

Yet, the report said, there appears to be limits to which farms can be increased and obtain economic production.

"The bigger the cotton farm, the more profitable—but only up to a point," the agency said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American consumer has increased the portion of his income spent for beef by 25 per cent during the last 30 years.

The Agriculture Department reports the average consumer now spends 2.5 per cent of his income for this meat. Thirty years ago he spent 2 per cent. Consumers average spending 19 per cent of their incomes for all foods.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last year's big buildup of cattle and calves for feeding for the quality slaughter market continued to be reflected in feeding areas despite heavy marketings since the first of the year.

An Agriculture Department report showed today that 8,105,000 head were on feed in 28 major feeding states on April 1, an increase of 11 per cent over a year earlier.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm fire losses reached an all-time high of $175 billion in 1962.

Reporting this today, the Agriculture Department said these losses were 7 per cent greater than in 1961. The estimates were based on farm-fire loss experience of a sample of 226 farmers' mutual fire insurance companies in 27 states.

Mex-American Slate Wins Poll in Texas

CRYSTAL CITY, Tex. (AP)—Business went on as usual in this south Texas town of 10,000, where trouble had been feared as its first Mexican-American City Council took office.

The new councilmen, elected April 2, were sworn in without notice at 1 p.m. Tuesday instead of 7:30 p.m. as scheduled.

City Manager James Dill administered the oaths. Fellow council members then elected Juan Cornejo, 33, mayor. They voted to retain Dill.

Tuesday night the councilmen appeared at a boisterous victory party in a plaza on the east side of town. Most of those attending were of Mexican extraction.

The five Mexican-Americans were elected by a record vote after the Political Association of Spanish Speaking Organizations and the Teamster's Union joined to conduct a poll tax and a voter education campaign.

The five men losing City Council seats in the election had held office for several years, two of them for more than 30 years each.

Problems of Cuban Exiles

Refugees Are Disillusioned By U.S. Ban against Raids

EDITOR'S NOTE — The U.S. ban on Cuban exile raids on Castro's Cuba has created deep disillusionment among the exile communities in Florida and posed a potential embarrassment for the United States. Third of four special articles.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—No bread is more bitter than the bread eaten in exile.

Because of that, grave concern is being expressed today in Miami at the possibility that current U.S. policy toward Cuba may backfire. The result, say some careful students of the situation, could be a black eye for Uncle Sam and painful embarrassment before Latin America and the world.

Miami has at least 150,000 Cuban refugees. Only a tiny percentage of these is actively engaged in harassing the Cuban Communist regime or attempting to fight it in various ways. But practically every adult Cuban in exile fervently expresses the hope that Fidel Castro will be overthrown.

Many Cuban refugees show signs now of going through an agony of dying hope, in the wake of U.S. crackdowns on raids against Cuba or ostensible supply missions to bolster underground anti-Castro fighters on the island.

Some will admit the armed attacks by exiles against the Castro regime—even the attack on a Soviet cargo ship March 18—were mere pinpricks against an entrenched police state power. Many are willing to concede President Kennedy had good reasons for forbidding such attacks, for being concerned about the threat of a monumental Soviet-American crisis which might result from them.

The U.S. government says the attacks in reality provide Castro with additional excuses to crack down against internal Cuban resistance. Some Cuban exiles will admit even that may be true.

But, up to a few weeks ago, at least, something was going on, they say—sudden raids against vastly superior forces; and gallantry of the David against the Goliath—the gestures of defiance. It was a way of letting off steam.

Then the United States intervened. The exiles' steam was bottled up.

"There are too many disillusionments," said an anguished young Cuban. "The United States was with us and now it is against us. We can fight Castro or even the Russians in Cuba, but how can we fight them and the United States and Britain, too?"

Against such sentiments, arguments, no matter how logical, make little impression. Resentment finds its reflection, too, in growing resistance to the U.S. program to resettle exiles in other areas of the United States and ease the burden on Miami. Not one of the scores of exiles I have talked to said he would agree, now, to be resettled.

How many exiles are sheltered in Miami today?

On the rolls of the refugee center, about 162,000 have been registered since the relief program began in January, 1961. Many were in Miami before then, and many others never had to register because they were self-sustaining.

Since that time, 57,000 have been resettled in other areas. Miami officials say it is safe to estimate that the minimum number of exiles remaining in the city is 150,000 and that probably the figure is much higher.

Easily three-quarters of the Cubans in Miami come from white collar, professional, and semi-professional classes, jealous of their self-respect and by and large a law-abiding group, Miami officials say. Almost any Cuban one talks with will say he did not come to Miami as an immigrant, but intended to go back home as soon as the homeland was free.

Educators Probe

Chardon Scandal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Education Association reported today it was beginning an investigation into an alleged involvement of a former high school teacher in a pornography ring in the Chardon area.

The teacher, William Walthour, 28, resigned his position as an algebra teacher in the Chardon schools, the association said, after he was arrested and charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. He pleaded innocent to the charge and was released on $500 bail pending a May 3 hearing.

The charges grew out of an investigation by county authorities which was reported to have turned up evidence of a nude-photo ring which used high school girls for models, the association statement said.

Fuel Cell Research Costs $25 Million

CLEVELAND (AP)—About $25 million was spent for fuel cell research and development last year and the one-step conversion of natural gas into electricity is moving ahead, a Chicago scientist told the American Gas Association's Research and Utilization Conference today.

B. S. Baker of the Institute of Gas Technology in Chicago told an audience of about 500 that "it is not unreasonable to expect the all-gas fuel cell home or community to become a reality."

The fuel cell, a device somewhat similar to a storage battery and including two porous electrodes, converts chemical energy from gas to electricity.

Tax Reports Costly to Small Firms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio State University study report issued Wednesday says the cost of complying with federal tax statutes and regulations, in terms of percentage of taxable income, is greater for small firms than for larger ones.

The university's Bureau of business Research released a new book, "Corporations' Federal Income Tax Compliance Costs," listing it as the first study to determine definitively the actual federal corporate income tax compliance costs of representative firms of various sizes.

Dr. Kenneth S. Johnston, the author, is now an assistant professor of accounting at Northwestern University. He based his study on six firms whose annual sales ranged from $750,000 to nearly $1 million.

The study reported a range of one-tenth of one per cent to 3.24 per cent of taxable income was spent by the six firms to perform all necessary functions of compliance, such as preparation of returns, data accumulation for the tax return, tax planning and administration, general information and miscellaneous compliance efforts.

The report said total compliance costs of the six firms, expressed as a percentage of taxable income, were, in order of size from the largest to the smallest, .10, .20, .41, .56, 3.24 and 2.93.

Grasping at Straws

Speculation about a "French thaw" coming out of Secretary of State Dean Rusk's talks with President Charles de Gaulle and other French leaders in Paris was so much grasping at straws.

It is true that a cordial air prevailed the meetings. And that France showed a perhaps unexpected interest in an inter-allied nuclear force tied to NATO. And that it warmly promised full support of SEATO—the South East Asia Treaty Organization.

But what was not said is perhaps more significant. Rusk and DeGaulle did not discuss the U.S. "grand design" for Europe. Thus the basic difference dividing France and the rest of the Atlantic Alliance remain unmentioned.

It is possible, of course, that De Gaulle is having second thoughts about his plan for an independent French nuclear force. The program is already behind schedule, and some pessimism exists in France that the idea is practical. This may explain

France's new interest in a NATO nuclear deterrent.

As for De Gaulle's apparent warmth toward the Atlantic Alliance in general, this is not inconsistent with his attitude. No one ever really felt that he had removed France from it.

It may be that DeGaulle, having achieved what he wanted, feels he can afford to give an impression of thawing. Perhaps he feels that he has successfully affirmed France's independence and established a basis for French dominance in Europe.

De Gaulle kept Britain out of the common market. He achieved a pact with West Germany. He has diminished—or at least put in question—U.S. influence in Europe.

Having beaten his breast and enhanced European respect (if not liking) for France DeGaulle may be prepared to return wholeheartedly to a role in the alliance. But he has not done so.

Microcosm in Laos

Laos is "teetering on the brink of a possible new civil war," one of the wire services reports. This is hardly news, for the Southeast Asian country has been on the brink for many months. But it is a new and ominous development that fighting has broken out again.

In a way, Laos reflects the world situation in microcosm. Chinese communists are reported building up for a possible new attack on India. Burma is feeling border pressure from Red China. Thailand is still pro-West, but disquieting word has come from Bangkok suggesting the Thais might take a new, friendly look at Peking if the reds gain further in Laos.

Thus there is a running sore in an extended limb of Western, Free World body, with the red infection spreading. If it reaches the stage where the limb is lost, the danger of gangrene spreading throughout Southeast Asia is great—with the loss of South Vietnam, Thailand, Malaya and Indonesia possible.

For Red China, the prizes are great and worth reaching for—not only control of an entire region of the world, but ascendancy in that area over communist Russia. For the West, the loss would be monumental.

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel companies are betting their price increases will hold in the improving climate for business in general.

Times have turned definitely better in recent weeks. This shows up in many other ways than in increasing demand for certain steel products—a demand that is partly inspired by the urge to build up stocks because of the possibility of a steel strike late in the summer.

Industrial production as a whole has turned up after a lengthy period of stagnation with gains in steel tonnage just part of the picture.

Unemployment has dropped a bit. Manufacturing payrolls show an impressive gain.

Taking heart from this, perhaps, corporations have raised their sights for spending on new equipment and plants. Retail sales are advancing slowly, but the public seems in a buying mood for what it wants—high volume of auto sales being prime example.

With business in general improving, the steel companies figure their customers are less likely to resist price rises. The steel firms were moved to action perhaps as much by this as by their long chafing against profit squeezes. Steelmen hope the price increases will stick even after the buildup of inventories as a strike hedge stops. This would follow clearing of wage demand intentions of the steelworkers and, hopefully, a settlement without a strike.

Many outside the industry wonder if the customers, once the inventory buildup stops, will look to foreign steel at lower prices or turn still more to substitute materials. Then it might take an even better general business climate than at present to make all the price rises hold.

But currently the news and the prospects are good.

Manufacturing payrolls have climbed to a record annual rate of $95.4 billion. The rise in March was at an annual rate of $700 million, following a $900-million jump in February.

This was the biggest item in pushing total personal income up to a record $452.7 billion a year. Even if the fairly high rate of saving continues, about 93 percent of that sum will be spent. And many industries expect to increase their sales.

A rise of about $14 billion to $15 billion in consumer expenditures this year is predicted by Dr. James J. O'Leary, vice-president of the Life Insurance Association of America.

And new financing in the credit markets this year may top last year's record $62.4 billion, according to Dr. Roy L. Reiersen, senior vice president of Bankers Trust Co., New York. The bank's estimate for 1963 is $62.8 billion. It expects another increase in home mortgages to account for much of the gain.

Looking at the whole picture, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York notes that "the tone of business news has improved since the middle of the first quarter."

New orders for durable goods have gone up impressively. And apparently the makers of pricing policy in the steel industry have been impressed.

EVER HAPPEN TO YOU?

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

The classic picture of the overweight, pampered, wealthy tycoon nursing a painful, swollen, bandaged big toe is not a typical picture of gout. Gout is a disease that is not the exclusive property of the rich.

Gout is disturbance of the processing and elimination of uric acid. It is most frequently seen in middle-aged men; only occasionally in women.

It has been for years wrongly suspected that gout was due entirely to over-indulgence in rich food and wines, but dietary indiscretions and high living are not the only causes of the disease.

Uric acid is a complex chemical. It is true that certain foods do produce large amounts of uric acid. Sweetbreads, anchovies, kidneys and sardines are some of the culprits. But the onset of an attack of gout may follow a very slight injury or an operation or an infection.

Gout does not affect the large toe alone. All other joints—the ankle, knee, hands and shoulders—may also be affected by this acutely painful condition. Swelling, tenderness and redness of one or more joints, with fever, undoubtedly makes the patient seek medical help. The pain is intense.

For the doctor, this typical picture is almost conclusive, especially if supported by a family history of gout. Yet the final diagnosis is never made until the uric acid content of the blood is determined. A marked increase over the normal amount definitely stamps the diagnosis as gout.

The newer treatment of this disease represents one of the many hopeful accomplishments of medicine.

A drug called "Colchicine" is particularly effective in the treatment of gout. Arthritis, which may sometimes be confused with gout, is not affected by colchicine.

Other valuable drugs, when taken under strict supervision for a long time, can often prevent many of the painful episodes of gout. Gout in its chronic forms can be as debilitating and as incapacitating as very severe types of arthritis.

When gout is suspected and the diagnosis is confirmed, early and diligent treatment with medication and diet can prevent many of its unpleasant consequences.

Is good health measured only by the state of physical well-being? Modern concepts of medicine show us that this is not so.

Good health is more properly defined as the delicate balance between the healthy body and the healthy mind. One cannot be separated from the other.

If a man recovers completely from a serious illness and continues to worry constantly about that illness, we cannot say that he is in good health. His anxiety will affect his work and his social relationships. His fears will keep him from functioning well as a productive human being.

It is the unity of emotional health and physical health that adds up to "good health."

Railroads Fight To Live

By John Chamberlain

My generation, which came of age during the period when almost everybody was looking to establish perfect social justice, was taught to cry for people. It has taken many of us thirty years to learn that this seldom does the poor welp for person or institution the least bit of good.

The coal industry and the railroads that five by transporting coal are both cases in point. Time was when it was fashionable to lament the hard times that had come to the coal companies and the coal-carrying roads. Oil was doing them in. Coal was "sick," and the railroads—which, ironically, had taken to burning oil themselves—were hospital cases along with it.

While the tears were flowing however, the best of the coal mine companies automated their processes, which enabled them to make money and to pay a smaller number of employed miners a decent wage. This restoration of a sick industry to health has been widely remarked upon. The still unheralded story is that of the coal-carrying railroads, which, without help from those who have been crying for them, have at last reached the threshold of their own salvation. They have learned to cut the cost of coal transportation just in the nick of time to do battle against the threat of the coal "slurry" pipeline, which would ship coal by pulverizing it and mixing it with water, and against the menace of something called "coal by wire," which is shorthand for describing a big coal burning central power house erected right at the mine mouth for long-distance transmission of electricity.

The device hit upon by the railroads for keeping their coal traffic is something that is called the "unitized" or the "integral" unit consisting of a "tube" of electrically controlled and indissolubly connected hopper cars has as yet been put into service. When this sort of "unitized" train does materialize from the drafting boards, railroads will be in a position to carry 24,000 tons of coal or iron ore at one swoop from the mine to the power house or the steel plant. Cars will be loaded and unloaded while still in motion, at the press of a button, and turnarounds will be both fast and cheap.

While waiting for this dream to become an actuality, the railroads have been improvising an approach to the true "integral" train. The New York Central Railroad, for instance, is now linking 160 to 200 cars in an all-coal-carrying unit in bulk lots to the biggest public utilities.

The Commonwealth Edison Company of Chicago, taking full advantage of the Central's experiments, plans to make use of a Central 100-car coal shuttle service between the Peabody Coal Company's Lynville strip mine in southern Indiana and its big State Line Station power house at Hammond, near Chicago. And two other shuttle service trains, each consisting of 126 cars, will be operated by the Gulf, Mobile and Ohio Railroad between a Southwest Illinois Coal Company strip mine near Belleville, Illinois, to the Commonwealth Edison's Joliet power station.

The advantage of the shuttle service approach to the true integral train is that it can accomplish in thirty-six hours what used to be done in five or six days. The old system was to hitch up a heterogeneous lot of cars at the mines with cargo destined for several users and then run the train to a classification yard for decoupling, switching and rerouting. The handling charges were so costly that power companies were encouraged to switch to residual oil in spite of the fact that its sulfur content eats into boiler tubes.

One thing standing in the way of making full use of the big unit train delivering 7,000 tons at a whack to a single customer is that the Interstate Commerce Commission has frowned on letting the railroads make bulk contracts with big customers. Bills are pending in the House and the Senate however, that would exempt rail shipment of bulk commodities from minimum rate regulation.

It takes a long time for a "regulated" industry to prove to its supposed governmental protector that it must be allowed to compete if it is to live. But it now looks as if the railroads, unaided by anybody, were getting somewhere.

EDITOR'S NOTE — We welcome letters to the editor. They must be signed by the writer with a complete return address. Dear Sir:

"There is to be no county track meet for girls this year." When this information reached me, it was the last straw.

The shameful neglect of our high school girls and our grade school girls athletic training has long been a distressing subject to me.

We may have better curriculum for girls today, but 25 years ago, our girls athletic program was many times richer than it is now. What did we do? We had competitive basketball games between schools (none of this futile cheer-leading for us) that were as exciting and hair-raising as any varsity boys basketball game of today. We had volleyball, baseball, and track.

Back then girls, as well as boys, knew what a training program meant. There wasn't much talk about physical fitness but we could last through a tough game of basketball or run a hundred yard dash without collapsing.

And the baseball games we had! Every grade had its own team and played a game with another grade at every recess. Also in high school, we had games with other schools the same as the boys did.

What has happened to girls athletics? Are the parents afraid for their girls to play? Goodness knows they don't work a fraction as hard as in the past because the strenuous household chores that girls once did have vanished. Of course girls don't walk anymore either—they ride as do the rest of us. So it worries me a lot as to how their muscles will ever develop.

Is it any wonder that girls concern themselves so much with how they look and spend all their spare time ratiating their hair or applying purple eye shadow or whatever it takes to catch the boys' attention? Why do they try so hard for this attention? For one thing the boys rate ALL the attention in the athletic program.

Most schools start boys athletic development way back about grade 4. They start working on football, baseball and basketball. Little League baseball in summer is promoted for boys everywhere.

Where are all the little girls from grade 4 on? They are crowded out of the gym—the boys have to practice.

If by chance the girls do get half the gym floor, there's no one to instruct them in learning the fundamentals of any organized sport—it's just "drop the handkerchief" or something as ineffective.

Why waste time on the girls—you know they don't put their teams into competition. And why don't they? For the life of me, I can't see why.

I'm for getting girls away from being "prima donnas" and back to wholesome sports activity. Perhaps we wouldn't have so many teen-age marriages then.

Let's move the boys over just a little bit and get some young physical education majors inspiring and teaching these lethargic girls. An enthusiastic teacher could really enliven them and work wonders in a short time—given the chance.

If it's going to take competition to bring back girls athletics, then let's do it! Come on school officials, parents and especially all girls. Let's GO!—and show everyone what good teams you can have.

Show them that you can set up plays, catch hard passes, throw accurately and run like the wind. Be more than a spectator.

I'm very much interested in boys athletics, but I'm a little provoked with the girls forever sitting on the sidelines.

Grasping at Straws

Speculation about a "French thaw" coming out of Secretary of State Dean Rusk's talks with President Charles de Gaulle and other French leaders in Paris was so much grasping at straws.

It is true that a cordial air pervaded the meetings. And that France showed a perhaps unexpected interest in an inter-allied nuclear force tied to NATO. And that it warmly promised full support of SEATO—the South East Asia Treaty Organization.

But what was not said is perhaps more significant. Rusk and DeGaulle did not discuss the U.S. "grand design" for Europe. Thus the basic difference dividing France and the rest of the Atlantic Alliance remain unmentioned.

It is possible, of course, that De Gaulle is having second thoughts about his plan for an independent French nuclear force. The program is already behind schedule, and some pessimism exists in France that the idea is practical. This may explain

France's new interest in a NATO nuclear deterrent.

As for De Gaulle's apparent warmth toward the Atlantic Alliance in general, this is not inconsistent with his attitude. No one ever really felt that he had removed France from it.

It may be that DeGaulle, having achieved what he wanted, feels he can afford to give an impression of thawing. Perhaps he feels that he has successfully affirmed France's independence and established a basis for French dominance in Europe.

De Gaulle kept Britain out of the common market. He achieved a pact with West Germany. He has diminished—or at least put in question—U.S. influence in Europe.

Having beaten his breast and enhanced European respect (if not liking) for France, DeGaulle may be prepared to return wholeheartedly to a role in the alliance. But he has not done so.

Microcosm in Laos

Laos is "teetering on the brink of a possible new civil war," one of the wire services reports. This is hardly news, for the Southeast Asian country has been on the brink for many months. But it is a new and ominous development that fighting has broken out again.

In a way, Laos reflects the world situation in microcosm. Chinese communists are reported building up for a possible new attack on India. Burma is feeling border pressure from Red China. Thailand is still pro-West, but disquieting word has come from Bangkok suggesting the Thais might take a new, friendly look at Peking

if the reds gain further in Laos.

Thus there is a running sore in an extended limb of Western, Free World body, with the red infection spreading. If it reaches the stage where the limb is lost, the danger of gangrene spreading throughout Southeast Asia is great—with the loss of South Vietnam, Thailand, Malaya and Indonesia possible.

For Red China, the prizes are great and worth reaching for—not only control of an entire region of the world, but ascendancy in that area over communist Russia. For the West, the loss would be monumental.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel companies are betting their price increases will hold in the improving climate for business in general.

Times have turned definitely better in recent weeks. This shows up in many other ways than in increasing demand for certain steel products—a demand that is partly inspired by the urge to build up stocks because of the possibility of a steel strike late in the summer.

Industrial production as a whole has turned up after a lengthy period of stagnation with gains in steel tonnage just part of the picture.

Unemployment has dropped a bit. Manufacturing payrolls show an impressive gain.

Taking heart from this perhaps, corporations have raised their sights for spending on new equipment and plants. Retail sales are advancing slowly, but the public seems in a buying mood for what it wants—high volume of auto sales being prime example.

With business in general improving, the steel companies figure their customers are less likely to resist price rises. The steel firms were moved to action perhaps as much by this as by their long chafing against profit squeezes. Steelmen hope the price increases will stick even after the buildup of inventories as a strike hedge stops. This would follow clearing of wage demand intentions of the steelworkers and, hopefully, a settlement without a strike.

Many outside the industry wonder if the customers, once the inventory buildup stops, will look to foreign steel at lower prices or turn still more to substitute materials. Then it might take an even better general business climate than at present to make all the price rises hold.

But currently the news and the prospects are good.

Manufacturing payrolls have climbed to a record annual rate of $95.4 billion. The rise in March was at an annual rate of $700 million, following a $900-million jump in February.

This was the biggest item in pushing total personal income up to a record $452.7 billion a year. Even if the fairly high rate of saving continues, about 93 percent of that sum will be spent. And many industries expect to increase their takes.

A rise of about $14 billion to $15 billion in consumer expenditures this year is predicted by Dr. James J. O'Leary, vice-president of the Life Insurance Association of America.

And new financing in the credit markets this year may top last year's record $62.4 billion, according to Dr. Roy L. Reiersen, senior vice president of Bankers Trust Co., New York. Burma Suspicion Of West Grows RANGOON, Burma (AP)—Neutrist Burma's once friendly face toward the West is reflecting doubt and suspicion now.

The Burmese strongman, Gen. Ne Win, is systematically routing out all foreign influences within his country, but the West is hurting the most.

His most recent move was to ban all embassies from showing propaganda films outside Rangoon. The distribution of foreign language publications printed outside Burma also has been banned.

Earlier this year, Ne Win virtually eliminated foreign business interests through nationalization.

Burma has a straggling 1,200-mile frontier with Communist China that compels her to tread a careful neutralist path in foreign affairs, diplomats here say. But they fear that Ne Win, trying hard to unite his country after 14 stormy years of independence, may use the bogey of an imperialistic West to bring this about. He feels he can afford to upset the West, but not China.

Burma tended to be oriented toward the West after Britain gave her independence gracefully in 1948. However, with the rise of the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization in neighboring Thailand, Burmese leaders have tended to withdraw into their traditional suspicion of foreigners.

Remnants of the Nationalist Chinese army that moved into Burma in retreat from the Communists have stayed to plague the border areas. Only last year, a riot nearly developed in front of the U.S. Embassy in Rangoon because of alleged American support for these elements.

The Communist Chinese have been playing a careful role with Burma over the years, culminating in the signing of a border agreement beneficial to Burma in 1961.

Subtle Chinese influences continue in Burma, with occasional goodwill visits. Even Ne Win's ruthless suppression of the warring Communist parties within his country, and the nationalization of two Communist Chinese banks, have failed to ruffle the Chinese.

The Red Chinese president, Liu Shao-chi, is visiting Burma to further cement relations.

Higher Steel Prices Seen Holding Firm

NEW YORK (AP) — The Iron Age, metalworking weekly, predicted today that higher steel prices will stand up under present market conditions.

"Demand for steel is strong enough to sustain most increases made by the early price movers," the magazine said.

It drew several contrasts with the situation a year ago when an industry drive for an across-the-board boost collapsed.

"At that time, a labor agreement had just been reached and consumers were canceling orders hand-over fist," the magazine said.

"Today, a major inventory buildup is under way . . . and the labor situation, instead of being wrapped up, is just in the early feeling-out stage."

The Iron Age sees it as unlikely that President Kennedy will "move strongly unless the increases spread across the board."

Unlike a year ago, price rises in the latest wave have been limited to specified products accounting for between one fourth and one half of each company's overall output.

The magazine foresees a firming in United Steel Worker demands as a result of the price rises in probable forthcoming wage contract reopening talks.

Ashville

The Ashville - Harrison Volunteer Fire Department was busy the past several days with an outbreak of fires.

The first was Friday when a defective carburetor on a car owned by Joe Good, Circleville, ignited at South Bloomfield. Damage was estimated at $100.

On Saturday firemen were called to the residence of Mrs. Marie Ramsay, Route 1, Lockbourne, where a demolished shed burned out of control and threatened other buildings. No damage was listed.

Monday a unit was called to the George Bowers farm, south off Route 23, where a woods was burning. No loss was reported.

Tuesday a fire was discovered in a barn owned by Charles Rager at the Winchester-St. Paul Road's intersection. Estimated loss was set at $15,000.

Astronauts' Wives Irritated By Questions about Fears

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Wives of U.S. astronauts "do no more than the wives of helicopter crews in Viet Nam or the women that the Thresher left behind," Mrs. Malcolm Scott Carpenter said.

She and the wives of eight other spacemen were here for a one-day visit.

Mrs. Carpenter referred to men lost in South Viet Nam and aboard the nuclear submarine Thresher in addressing a civic club luncheon group.

At another point she spoke of vast change in the lives of astronauts' families.

"It's as if I'd been acting on a dark stage all my married life and suddenly someone turns on the spotlight," Mrs. Carpenter said.

She and the other wives took a quick tour of Austin. It was their first excursion from Houston since the newest astronauts were moved to the Manned Spacecraft Center there last year.

At the luncheon, Mrs. Carpenter said the space wives, suddenly lumped together by news of the astronauts, "strained to maintain our identities."

"We were stringently correct and good to each other. We smoothed over our differences, making allowances for each other's idiosyncracies," she continued.

"And we had a thousand laughs—which more than anything helped maintain our sense of values and proportion in the face of this growing thing in our lives."

Questions about the wives' fears during the flights are irritating, Mrs. Carpenter said.

"I am reminded that we do no more than the wives of helicopter crews in Viet Nam or the women that the Thresher left behind. They risked just as much and they lost a great deal more."

With Mrs. Carpenter were the wives of two other original astronauts, Mrs. John H. Glenn Jr. and Mrs. Virgil I. Grissom; and wives of six new spacemen, Mrs. Edward H. White II, Mrs. Thomas P. Stafford, Mrs. John W. Young, Mrs. Frank Borman, Mrs. James A. McDivitt and Mrs. Elliot M. See.

Mrs. Alan B. Shepard Jr. was unable to come as planned because of a delay in returning from an Easter vacation at Cape Canaveral, Fla., with her husband.

Protective Insurance Firms Curbed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 10th District Court of Appeals has ruled that Ohio's 81 mutual protective insurance associations may insure only farm buildings and other structures specified in the state law.

The decision came in a case filed by the Allen County Mutual Insurance Association, Lima, against former state Insurance Director Arthur I. Vorys.

The associations had begun to insure buildings in cities and other type buildings the law does not specify. Mutual protective insurance associations do not charge premiums. Rather, each member is assessed a proportionate share to cover the costs of any claims other members make.

Under state law, the associations may "only insure farm buildings, detached dwellings and outbuildings, schoolhouses, churches, township buildings, grange buildings."

Common Pleas Judge Myron B. Gessaman had ruled "detached dwellings and outbuildings" could be any place in the state and not necessarily on a farm. The appeals court ruling reversed Judge Gessaman's decision on the basis of the law intended to limit the scope of protective association insurance to farms, whether inside or outside a municipality.

Burma Suspicion Of West Grows

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—Newtralist Burma's once friendly face toward the West is reflecting doubt and suspicion now.

The Burmese strongman, Gen.
Ne Win, is systematically routing out all foreign influences within his country, but the West is hurting the most.

His most recent move was to ban all embassies from showing propaganda films outside Rangoon.
The distribution of foreign language publications printed outside Burma also has been banned.

Earlier this year, Ne Win virtually eliminated foreign business interests through nationalization.

Burma has a straggling 1,200-mile frontier with Communist China that compels her to tread a careful neutralist path in foreign affairs, diplomats here say.

But they fear that Ne Win, trying hard to unite his country after 14 stormy years of independence, may use the bogey of an imperialistic West to bring this about. He feels he can afford to upset the West, but not China.

Burma tended to be oriented toward the West after Britain gave her independence gracefully in 1948. However, with the rise of the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization in neighboring Thailand, Burmese leaders have tended to withdraw into their traditional suspicion of foreigners.

Remnants of the Nationalist Chinese army that moved into Burma in retreat from the Communists have stayed to plague the border areas. Only last year, a riot nearly developed in front of the U.S. Embassy in Rangoon because of alleged American support for these elements.

The Communist Chinese have been playing a careful role with Burma over the years, culminating in the signing of a border agreement beneficial to Burma in 1961.

Subtle Chinese influences continue in Burma, with occasional goodwill visits. Even Ne Win's ruthless suppression of the warring Communist parties within his country, and the nationalization of two Communist Chinese banks, have failed to ruffle the Chinese.
The Red Chinese president, Liu
Shao-chi, is visiting Burma to further cement relations.

Higher Steel Prices Seen Holding Firm

NEW YORK (AP) — The Iron Age, metalworking weekly, predicted today that higher steel prices will stand up under present market conditions.

"Demand for steel is strong enough to sustain most increases made by the early price movers," the magazine said.

It drew several contrasts with the situation a year ago when an industry drive for an across-the-board boost collapsed.

"At that time, a labor agreement had just been reached and consumers were canceling orders hand-over - fist," the magazine said. "Today, a major inventory buildup is under way . . .

"And the labor situation, instead of being wrapped up, is just in the early feeling-out stage."

The Iron Age sees it as unlikely that President Kennedy will "move strongly unless the increases spread across the board."

Unlike a year ago, price rises in the latest wave have been limited to specified products accounting for between one fourth and one half of each company's overall output.

The magazine foresees a firming in United Steel Worker demands as a result of the price rises in probable forthcoming wage contract reopening talks.

Ashville

The Ashville - Harrison Volunteer Fire Department was busy the past several days with an outbreak of fires.

The first was Friday when a defective carburetor on a car owned

South Bloomfield. Damage was estimated at $100.

On Saturday firemen were called to the residence of Mrs. Marie Ramsay, Route 1, Lockbourne, where a demolished shed burned out of control and threatened other buildings. No damage was listed.

Monday a unit was called to the George Bowers farm, south of Route 23, where a woods was burning. No loss was reported.

Tuesday a fire was discovered in a barn owned by Charles Rager at en's made the trip by plane.

and Judy, Susan and Jimmy of end guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. E.

ed by the family at the home of

Ellen Kay, Janet and Carl. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Mahaffey, Dr. and Mrs. Mahaffey and Miss Dianne F. Conrad and Mr. Ronald Leo Jones exchanged wedding vows 7:30 p. m. March 16 in the Linden Baptist Church, Columbus.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Marvin A. Leist of Dayton, an uncle of the bride, assisted by Dr. William J. Schlatter.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom D. Conrad, 1491 Manchester Ave. and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo P. Jones, 1611 Briarwood Ave.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of candlelight white Chantilly lace fashioned with a jeweled scalloped Sabrina neckline. The bouffant skirt was designed with an intermission front, caught with a pearl cluster, and a chapel train highlighted with insets of lace. A jeweled crown held her circular veil of illusion and she carried a cascade arrangement of stephanotis centered with an orchid.

Miss Donna L. Terry was maid of honor. She wore a street length gown of royal blue peau taffeta fashioned with a full skirt. Bridesmaids were Miss Melanie K. Hundley and Miss Deanna L. Stoops. They wore similar gowns in pale blue. Miss Sherry Woodring, niece of the groom, was junior bridesmaid and she wore a similar gown of royal blue. Each carried a cascade arrangement of blue cornflowers and white carnations.

Mr. Donald L. Jones, twin brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Mr. Michael L. Conrad, brother of the bride, Mr. Jeffrey Dierker, Mr. Charles Butler and Mr. Richard Gill.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a sheath dress of wedgewood blue silk organza with a lace bodice and her corsage was shattered carnations and pink rosebuds. The bridegroom's mother, wore a beige dress of silk organza with a full skirt. Her corsage was bronze mums.

A reception was held in the church parlors.

The new Mrs. Jones, a graduate of Linden McKinley High School, is employed by the Bureau of Hearings and Appeals, Social Security Administration.

Mr. Jones recently completed his Army service and in the fall will resume his studies at Ohio State University where he is majoring in Business Administration. He is currently employed by the Kroger Company.

The couple is residing at 3123 Medina Ave., Columbus.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Conrad, 126 Walnut St., and Mr. Walter D. Leist, S. Court St., and the last Mrs. Leist.

Guests from Circleville attending the wedding and reception were, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Croman, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Anderson, Mrs. Charles Compton, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Conrad, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Conrad and Mr. and Mrs. Gay Conrad.

Dear Abby: by Abigail Van Buren

Let Him End It!

DEAR ABBY: Last year, when I was hospitalized, my neighbor and "very dear friend" helped my husband care for our two youngsters. I thought I would never be able to repay her for her kindness until several weeks ago when my husband confessed that their relationship had gone beyond what he ever thought it would. He said he was sorry and asked my forgiveness. The "friend" tries to act normal. She doesn't know my husband has told me. We own our home and I don't intend to move. I cannot bear the sight of this two-faced woman. What should I do when she comes knocking at my door with her sweet smile and her apple pies?

DEAR BETRAYED: I presume your husband knows this woman well enough to speak to her. Ask him to tell her that he has confessed to you. I doubt if you'll be bothered again with either her sweet smile or her apple pies. And if she sends anything else over, don't eat it.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell your women readers to be careful of a man who proposes marriage on condition that the "candidate" pass inspection of all his children first. A widower asked to marry me, but first I had to meet all his six married children separately before they would give him the go-ahead. I passed "inspection," but I wish I hadn't. When he was well, his children came first. Now he is sick, and he's all mine.

STUCK WITH AN A.K.

DEAR ABBY: I have an older friend who works with me. She wants me to break up her son and his "girl friend." The son is 29 and his "girl friend" is 22. I am 26 and have seen the son, and although he couldn't possibly mean anything to me, I am sure I could break them up. Should I?

GIRL WITH EVERYTHING
DEAR GIRL: Don't attempt to destroy a relationship which could be very satisfactory for the two people involved. Your letter and your signature don't match.

Ever add finely diced leftover cooked ham to a muffin batter? The muffin recipe used for this should be low in sugar. The ham muffins taste delicious with breakfast eggs.

Sometimes flour is browned before use in the gravy for a stew; if you follow this method remember that during the browning process the flour will lose about half its thickening power.

Big Bond Issues

probate court. The present appeals system is to the common pleas court.

Ease the current rash of requests for new common pleas court judges in some of Ohio's larger counties by putting a floor of $500 under any money dispute which common pleas courts are required to hear. Smaller money matters would be handled by county courts and municipal courts.

Sen. Ross Pepple, R-Allen, who offered one, and Sens. Charles H. Jones, R-Butler, and John Smith, D-Montgomery, who offered the other, apparently had no idea anyone else was working on the plan for the proposed $200-million bond issue for educational institutions. Yet they have very similar provisions in many respects.

After a hasty conference between sponsors, it was decided the Pepple proposal would be used as the legislative vehicle to get the proposal on next November's ballot but that some provisions of the Jones-Smith plan might be incorporated in the final proposal.

Both plans would be financed by a continuation of a penny-a-pack tax on cigarettes which now is paying off a $150-million bond issue authorized by the voters in 1955 to construct mental hospitals, university buildings and classrooms in fast-growing areas.

Voter approval of the new bond issue would mean that the penny tax would continue for at least another 25 years.

The Jones-Smith proposal lays some stress on a 3-1 break for universities in division of the $200 million.

The Pepple emphasis, however, seems to be on creation of full-scale four-year branch universities at Dayton and Lima. Lima now has a two-year academic branch of Ohio State University. Dayton and Miami University are working on a branch in the Gem City, the extent of which has not yet been determined.

Five Treated For Lacerations

A tin can was the source of injury for a local woman who received emergency treatment at Berger Hospital yesterday. Five persons were treated and released.

Emma Moore, 22, of 140 York St., fell on a tin can and lacerated her left wrist.

Mark Oliver, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oliver, Starkey Drive cut his left hand on an ax at his home.

George Trimmer, 81, of 471 E. Franklin St., custodian of the City Building fell while working and cut his left elbow.

Kenny Dewey, 16, of 215 N. Waddington St., received a laceration over his left eyebrow while playing basketball at Ted Lewis Park.

Dale Kempton, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kempton, Route 1, Stoutsville, struck the corner of a table and lacerated his right ear.

Miss Saunders Set For Water Ballet

The show is based on the musical "Camelot". The director is Mrs. Vellette Stumpf, UC instructor in physical and health education. She will be assisted by Miss Judy Bitmann and Miss Carol Naish.

Proceeds from the Penguin Club's show are directed to UC's Helen Coips Memorial scholarship fund.

Church Robbers Return Loot, Ask Priest for Forgiveness

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—At 3:30 a.m. the phone rang in the rectory of St. Henry's Catholic Church.

"Is this the father?" a voice asked.

"Yes," said the Rt. Rev. Joseph A. Seiner.

"If you will look on the front seat of your car you will find the collection money we stole Sunday."

With the package of money Msgr. Seiner found a letter that said: "We are returning this money from the robbery on Easter morning. Our need for a clear conscience is greater than our need for the money. We beg the Church's forgiveness for this great injustice toward God. We also ask the forgiveness of Michael Ignatius for the blow he received during the robbery, and that by no means was this directed toward him personally."

Ignatius, elderly chief usher at St. Henry's, was struck on the head with a piece of lumber and the scalp wound required 12 stitches. "The bag he was carrying contained $180 in cash and $149 in checks," the letter said. "The checks have been destroyed."

"Some of this was spent before we reached the decision to return it. Therefore, we can only return $121 at this time. The rest of it we will pay back as soon as we can."

"Father, if we are forgiven, please put it in the paper that the money was returned and that our appeal for forgiveness has been accepted. If this attempt to undo the crime that we have committed has failed, would you please let us know through the Nashville Tennessean."

The priest asked the newspaper to print in today's editions these words from the Bible: "I will not be the death of a sinner, but that he be converted and saved."

Msgr. Seiner said he will turn the letter over to police, but with a request that the investigation be dropped. He said he does not wish to press charges if the offenders are found.

Steel Industry Completing Its Drive for Price Boosts

NEW YORK (AP)—The steel industry was in the mop-up stage today of its first successful drive for a significant price increase since 1958.

All but a comparative handful of steel firms had posted mark-ups, mostly averaging three per cent or less, on a narrow range of big-tonnage products. The rear guard was falling in line rapidly.

There was still no direct word on their actions from President Kennedy beyond qualified recognition a week ago that some boosts probably were justifiable and a caution to steelmen against going too far.

However, the President kept in close touch throughout. He was expected to be drawn out on his views in an appearance Friday before the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

The character and handling of the pricing move contrasted markedly with an abortive effort a year ago for an across-the-board increase.

It took eight days for the initial price rise, by Wheeling Steel Corp., to spread somewhat unevenly through the industry. The pitched battle of April 1962 over across-the-board increases ended in a roll-back within 72 hours.

The selective increases this year left some questions that divided close observers and might take a long time to answer conclusively.

Will prices of steel-made consumer goods rise appreciably? How, if at all, will the results affect wage-price stability, a key administration goal with ramifications for the entire economy?

Frederick Kappel, board chairman of the giant American Telephone and Telegraph Co., made clear Wednesday that he doesn't share the President's concern in this area.

The boosts "may be a blessing in disguise to the economy," Kappel told the AT&T annual meeting.

The executive, who also is chairman of the Business Council, a sort of Who's Who of industry, said he thought Kennedy's standaside role of recent days bolstered business confidence.

Ancient Island May Get Help

25,000-Year-Old Bog Backed in Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A strange little floating island in Buckeye Lake, perhaps 25,000 years old but breaking apart in its old age, may be due for a new lease on life.

The island in the Licking County lake is regarded as a botanical wonderland, Rep. Winston Churchill Allen, R-Licking, told the Ohio House Wednesday as he urged legislative sanction of a study which might prevent eventual disintegration of the ice-age relic.

The House unanimously approved Allen's proposal for a scientific study, at no cost to the state, as to why the island — generally known as Cranberry Bog or Cranberry Marsh—is starting to break apart at the seams.

Allen told the House that scientists believe the bog was deposited at about its present location by the last glacier which visited Ohio. This particular chunk of moss and plant life must have come from the farthest north reaches of Canada, because only in that area are such plants known, Allen said.

After the bog rode the glacier for countless centuries, Allen said, it must have just settled down to be a common, ordinary, displaced bog. Then Ohio, needing a reservoir to feed a canal system, flooded the Buckeye Lake area 100 years ago.

Suddenly, Cranberry Marsh, with its dwarf trees and strange, subarctic plants, floated. It has floated since and has been the mecca of generations of science students from dozens of universities.

The problem recently has been, some say, that power-bog wakes are tearing the floating island to pieces, bit by bit. Others say varying ice conditions are responsible for the fact the island is shrinking.

The point of Wednesday's action is that the scientists are going to work immediately to save the island.

Punishment For Mississippi Riles Dixiecrats

Civil Rights Panel's Suggestion to JFK Brings New Flareup

WASHINGTON (AP)—A proposal to punish Mississippi segregationists by denying federal funds to the state has touched off a new flareup in Congress over civil rights.

President Kennedy maintained silence on a recommendation by the Civil Rights Commission that he look into his legal authority to cut off funds to counter what the group said was "open and flagrant violation of constitutional guarantees" of Negro citizens seeking to vote in Mississippi.

There was no indication the President planned any action toward carrying out such a proposal which would be hailed by minority voters in the large industrial states but would be certain to stir resentment among white voters in the South.

Nevertheless Southern senators erupted with bitter condemnation of the suggestion while civil rights advocates of both parties praised it.

This revival of controversy seemed likely to make it more difficult for administration leaders to get congressional approval of Kennedy's recommendation for a four-year extension of life for the commission and a broadening of its authority. Unless Congress acts before then, the commission would go out of existence in November.

There already is general recognition that the commission matter is the only civil rights issue likely to be pushed to a vote this year. Otherwise, Kennedy's program in this field probably will await election year consideration.

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., of the Senate Judiciary Committee which passes on all civil rights proposals, called the commission's recommendation for cutting off payments on highways, flood control, military contracts and other U.S.-aided programs "preposterous."

He said the President doesn't have "any color of authority" to carry it out.

Agreeing, Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., said he couldn't conceive of Congress giving any serious consideration to the commission's recommendation that legislation be passed to carry out its suggestion.

Lions Complete Plans for Sale

Final plans were made for the annual Lions Club Light Bulb Sale during a dinner meeting of the local organization at the Wardell Party Home.

The annual sale provides funds for the Lion sponsored sight saving program conducted throughout the year in Circleville. The event will be held the week of May 13.

Charles Currett, program chairman, presented a color film on the silk industry of Japan. Charles Smith, president, conducted the business session following the dinner.

2-Gun Policemen Banned By Cincinnati Chief

CINCINNATI (AP)—Two - gun policemen are out, says Asst. Chief Robert Klug. Klug issued his order Wednesday after an investigation touched off when a policeman's extra pistol fell on the floor during roll call and went off.

Some policemen have been carrying spare weapons since the unsolved slaying of patrolman Donald Martin two years ago. He was killed with his own service revolver.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy is like a man caught in a revolving door.

He's under pressure to intervene in Mississippi directly and in Cuba at least indirectly.

In Mississippi it would be politically dangerous, in Cuba militarily dangerous.

He's not apt to intervene in either.

The Civil Rights Commission has recommended he withhold federal funds from Mississippi to force it to protect the rights of its Negro citizens.

The commission said in a special report to the President: "There is an overriding constitutional obligation to make certain that federal funds are expended in a manner which benefits all citizens without distinction."

This is what Kennedy would face if he tried it:

1. Antagonism of the South which might cost him heavily, perhaps fatally, in the 1964 presidential race.

If he sought to compel Mississippi to conform on civil rights, every other Southern state could expect the same unless it got in line.

2. Antagonism of the Southern Democrats in Congress. For more than two years he has leaned over backwards to pacify the Southerners even when they frustrated him.

He needs their help to get his programs through.

Yet, if he ignores the commission's suggestion, Kennedy risks a loss in the Negro vote in the North.

The Cuban refugees in Florida can't vote, but they're creating an embarrassment for him too.

Right now the Kennedy administration and the refugees are in a shouting match resulting from his ban on their use of American shores as bases even for hit-and-run raids on Fidel Castro's island.

In answer to the refugees' complaints the American State Department said of Cuba: "The United States cannot exist with a Soviet satellite in this hemisphere."

But that's exactly what the United States is doing since there is no sign it has any plans for getting Castro out although the refugees remember how last December Kennedy held out hope of their return to Cuba.

If it were just a matter of overturning Castro, Kennedy could hardly be reluctant. Just two years ago he took responsibility for the refugee invasion which collapsed in disaster.

But the raids on Cuba from this country couldn't occur without the American government's permission, open or concealed. This did not seem to matter much so long as only Castro was involved.

But now there are Russian troops in Cuba. And raids on the island, with injury to the Russians, could lead to an unhappy and maybe tragic situation with the Soviet government.

Kennedy appears reluctant to take the chance—while the Russians are in Cuba—just for the sake of getting rid of Castro, since the troops by themselves are no immediate threat to his country.

He was not reluctant to take the chance when the price was higher—when Russian missiles on Cuba were a direct threat to the United States and Castro at that time was strictly incidental.

3 Dope Peddlers Get Stiff Prison Terms

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—U. S. District Court Judge Carl A. Winman has sentenced three men convicted of dope peddling to prison terms of five to 10 years.

John Radican, 23, of Elyria, former student of the University of Dayton, and Arlie Bush, 33, of Newport, Ky., were sentenced to five years. They had pleaded guilty earlier. Joseph A. Gargano, convicted earlier by a federal court jury, was sentenced to 10 years.

The United States uses 41,200,000 tons of paper every year, or 457 pounds per person.

probate court. The present appeals system is to the common pleas court.

Ease the current rash of requests for new common pleas court judges in some of Ohio's larger counties by putting a floor of $500 under any money dispute which common pleas courts are required to hear. Smaller money matters would be handled by county courts and municipal courts.

Sen. Ross Pepple, R-Allen, who offered one, and Sens. Charles H. Jones, R-Butler, and John Smith, D-Montgomery, who offered the other, apparently had no idea anyone else was working on the plan for the proposed $200-million bond issue for educational institutions. Yet they have very similar provisions in many respects.

After a hasty conference between sponsors, it was decided the Pepple proposal would be used as the legislative vehicle to get the proposal on next November's ballot but that some provisions of the Jones-Smith plan might be incorporated in the final proposal.

Both plans would be financed by a continuation of a penny-a-pack tax on cigarettes which now is paying off a $150-million bond issue authorized by the voters in 1955 to construct mental hospitals, university buildings and classrooms in fast-growing areas.

Voter approval of the new bond issue would mean that the penny tax would continue for at least another 25 years.

The Jones-Smith proposal lays some stress on a 3-1 break for universities in division of the $200 million.

The Pepple emphasis, however, seems to be on creation of full-scale four-year branch universities at Dayton and Lima. Lima now has a two-year academic branch of Ohio State University. Dayton and Miami University are working on a branch in the Gem City, the extent of which has not yet been determined.

Five Treated For Lacerations

A tin can was the source of injury for a local woman who received emergency treatment at Berger Hospital yesterday. Five persons were treated and released.

Emma Moore, 22, of 140 York St., fell on a tin can and lacerated her left wrist.

Mark Oliver, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oliver, Starkey Drive cut his left hand on an ax at his home.

George Trimmer, 81, of 471 E. Franklin St., custodian of the City Building fell while working and cut his left elbow.

Kenny Dewey, 16, of 215 N. Washington St., received a laceration over his left eyebrow while playing basketball at Ted Lewis Park.

Dale Kempton, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kempton, Route 1, Stoutsville, struck the corner of a table and lacerated his right ear.

Miss Saunders Set For Water Ballet

Miss Mary Ann Saunders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon E. Saunders, Knollwood Village, will participate in the University of Cincinnati's annual water ballet on May 3.

Thirty-six members of the UC Penguin Club, co-ed swimming group, will present the annual water ballet in the university's Laurence Hall pool.

The show is based on the musical "Camelot". The director is Mrs. Velnette Stumpf, UC instructor in physical and health education. She will be assisted by Miss Judy Bitmann and Miss Carol Naish.

Proceeds from the Penguin Club's show are directed to UC's Helen Coips Memorial scholarship fund.

Church Robbers Return Loot, Ask Priest for Forgiveness

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—At 3:30 a.m. the phone rang in the rectory of St. Henry's Catholic Church.

"Is this the father?" a voice asked.

"Yes," said the Rt. Rev. Joseph A. Seiner.

"If you will look on the front seat of your car you will find the collection money we stole Sunday."

With the package of money Msgr. Seiner found a letter that said: "We are returning this money from the robbery on Easter morning. Our need for a clear conscience is greater than our need for the money. We beg the Church's forgiveness for this great injustice toward God. We also ask the forgiveness of Michael Ignat for the blow he received during the robbery, and that by no means was this directed toward him personally."

Ignat, elderly chief usher at St. Henry's, was struck on the head with a piece of lumber and the scalp wound required 12 stitches.

"The bag he was carrying contained $180 in cash and $149 in checks," the letter said. "The checks have been destroyed."

"Some of this was spent before we reached the decision to return it. Therefore, we can only return $121 at this time. The rest of it we will pay back as soon as we can."

"Father, if we are forgiven, please put it in the paper that the money was returned and that our appeal for forgiveness has been accepted. If this attempt to undo the crime that we have committed has failed, would you please let us know through the Nashville Tennessean."

The priest asked the newspaper to print in today's editions these words from the Bible: "I will not the death of a sinner, but that he be converted and saved."

Msgr. Seiner said he will turn the letter over to police, but with a request that the investigation be dropped. He said he does not wish to press charges if the offenders are found.

Steel Industry Completing Its Drive for Price Boosts

NEW YORK (AP)—The steel industry was in the mop-up stage today of its first successful drive for a significant price increase since 1958.

All but a comparative handful of steel firms had posted mark-ups, mostly averaging three per cent or less, on a narrow range of big-tonnage products. The rear guard was falling in line rapidly.

There was still no direct word on their actions from President Kennedy beyond qualified recognition a week ago that some boosts probably were justifiable and a caution to steelmen against going too far.

However, the President kept in close touch throughout. He was expected to be drawn out on his views in an appearance Friday before the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

The character and handling of the pricing move contrasted markedly with an abortive effort a year ago for an across-the-board increase.

It took eight days for the initial price rise, by Wheeling Steel Corp., to spread somewhat unevenly through the industry. The pitched battle of April 1962 over across-the-board increases ended in a roll-back within 72 hours.

The selective increases this year left some questions that divided close observers and might take a long time to answer conclusively.

Will prices of steel-made consumer goods rise appreciably? How, if at all, will the results affect wage-price stability, a key administration goal with ramifications for the entire economy?

Frederick Kappel, board chairman of the giant American Telephone and Telegraph Co., made clear Wednesday that he doesn't share the President's concern in this area.

The boosts "may be a blessing in disguise to the economy," Kappel told the AT&T annual meeting.

The executive, who also is chairman of the Business Council, a sort of Who's Who of industry, said he thought Kennedy's standaside role of recent days bolstered business confidence.

Ancient Island May Get Help

25,000-Year-Old Bog Backed in Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A strange little floating island in Buckeye Lake, perhaps 25,000 years old but breaking apart in its old age, may be due for a new lease on life.

The island in the Licking County lake is regarded as a botanical wonderland. Rep. Winston Churchill Allen, R-Licking, told the Ohio House Wednesday as he urged legislative sanction of a study which might prevent eventual disintegration of the ice-age relic.

The House unanimously approved Allen's proposal for a scientific study, at no cost to the state, as to why the island — generally known as Cranberry Bog or Cranberry Marsh—is starting to break up at the seams.

Allen told the House that scientists believe the bog was deposited at about its present location by the last glacier which visited Ohio. This particular chunk of moss and plant life must have come from the farthest north reaches of Canada, because only in that area are such plants known, Allen said.

After the bog rode the glacier for countless centuries, Allen said, it must have just settled down to be a common, ordinary, displaced bog. Then Ohio, needing a reservoir to feed a canal system, flooded the Buckeye Lake area 100 years ago.

Suddenly, Cranberry Marsh, with its dwarf trees and strange, subarctic plants, floated. It has floated since and has been the mecca of generations of science students from dozens of universities.

The problem recently has been, some say, that power-boats wakes are tearing the floating island to pieces, bit by bit. Others say varying ice conditions are responsible for the fact the island is shrinking.

The point of Wednesday's action is that the scientists are going to work immediately to save the island.

Punishment For Mississippi Riles Dixiecrats

Civil Rights Panel's Suggestion to JFK Brings New Flareup

WASHINGTON (AP)—A proposal to punish Mississippi segregationists by denying federal funds to the state has touched off a new flareup in Congress over civil rights.

President Kennedy maintained silence on a recommendation by the Civil Rights Commission that he look into his legal authority to cut off funds to counter what the group said was "open and flagrant violation of constitutional guarantees" of Negro citizens seeking to vote in Mississippi.

There was no indication the President planned any action toward carrying out such a proposal which would be hailed by minority voters in the large industrial states but would be certain to stir resentment among white voters in the South.

Nevertheless Southern senators erupted with bitter condemnation of the suggestion while civil rights advocates of both parties praised it.

This revival of controversy seemed likely to make it more difficult for administration leaders to get congressional approval of Kennedy's recommendation for a four-year extension of life for the commission and a broadening of its authority. Unless Congress acts before then, the commission would go out of existence in November.

There already is general recognition that the commission matter is the only civil rights issue likely to be pushed to a vote this year. Otherwise, Kennedy's program in this field probably will await election year consideration.

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., of the Senate Judiciary Committee which passes on all civil rights proposals, called the commission's recommendation for cutting off payments on highways, flood control, military contracts and other U.S.-aided programs "preposterous."

He said the President doesn't have "any color of authority" to carry it out.

Agreeing, Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., said he couldn't conceive of Congress giving any serious consideration to the commission's recommendation that legislation be passed to carry out its suggestion.

Lions Complete Plans for Sale

Final plans were made for the annual Lions Club Light Bulb Sale during a dinner meeting of the local organization at the Wardell Party Home.

The annual sale provides funds for the Lion sponsored sight saving program conducted throughout the year in Circleville. The event will be held the week of May 13.

Charles Currett, program chairman, presented a color film on the silk industry of Japan. Charles Smith, president, conducted the business session following the dinner.

2-Gun Policemen Banned By Cincinnati Chief

CINCINNATI (AP)—Two - gun policemen are out, says Asst. Chief Robert Klug. Klug issued his order Wednesday after an investigation touched off when a policeman's extra pistol fell on the floor during roll call and went off.

Some policemen have been carrying spare weapons since the unsolved slaying of patrolman Donald Martin two years ago. He was killed with his own service revolver.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy is like a man caught in a revolving door.

He's under pressure to intervene in Mississippi directly and in Cuba at least indirectly.

In Mississippi it would be politically dangerous, in Cuba militarily dangerous.

He's not apt to intervene in either.

The Civil Rights Commission has recommended he withhold federal funds from Mississippi to force it to protect the rights of its Negro citizens.

The commission said in a special report to the President:

"There is an overriding constitutional obligation to make certain that federal funds are expended in a manner which benefits all citizens without distinction."

This is what Kennedy would face if he tried it:

1. Antagonism of the South which might cost him heavily, perhaps fatally, in the 1964 presidential race.

If he sought to compel Mississippi to conform on civil rights, every other Southern state could expect the same unless it got in line.

2. Antagonism of the Southern Democrats in Congress. For more than two years he has leaned over backwards to pacify the Southerners even when they frustrated him.

He needs their help to get his programs through.

Yet, if he ignores the commission's suggestion, Kennedy risks a loss in the Negro vote in the North.

The Cuban refugees in Florida can't vote, but they're creating an embarrassment for him, too.

Right now the Kennedy administration and the refugees are in a shouting match resulting from his ban on their use of American shores as bases even for hit-and-run raids on Fidel Castro's island.

WHITE HYACINTH — Hyacinths come in a fine array of colors, but white is the universal favorite. Pictured here is "Carnegie" a white hyacinth that was chosen in the International Bulb Selections. It is a good garden variety with large fleshy bells on a dense flower spike.

Area Could Use More Hyacinths

Pickaway County gardeners could make better use of hyacinths than they do. While not rare there are very few if any extensive plantings of hyacinths in this community.

Most plantings of these fragrant colorful bulbs are done in rows. Because they are stiff and prim they lend themselves nicely to the patterned or small formal garden.

In Old Williamsburg, Va., they are to be found in small backyard gardens. But hyacinths can be planted to fine advantage in colonies of one color in the informal flower border.

The modern Dutch hyacinth is large, brilliant in color and very fragrant. Hyacinths are not grown commercially on a large scale anywhere but Holland. Thus the name Dutch hyacinth!

HYACINTHS like a sunny spot in the garden. They prefer rich loam. The best planting time is October.

But if you were lucky enough to have received a potted hyacinth for Easter, simply plant it in your garden now and allow the foliage to die naturally.

Bulbs deteriorate in three years or less. Do not expect the same fine fat stalk of florets the second year. However, the older hyacinths have more grace than the new bulbs.

Hyacinths come in a fine array of colors — purples and lavenders pale pinks and dark pinks, whites and so-called yellows which are in reality deep cream.

Better Lutheran Cooperation Seen

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Theodore F. W. Nickel of Chicago, a vice president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, predicts increased cooperation among Lutherans that will result in a new inter-synodical agency.

The Missouri Synod's national convention here last June authorized negotiations aimed toward participation in an inter-synodical agency to replace the National Lutheran Council.

The plan is expected to be ready for presentation at the next convention in 1965 at Detroit. It also will be ready for ratification by the other bodies — the American Lutheran Church and the United Lutheran Church in America — which meet after that.

Garden Gossip

By MRS. ELIZABETH JONES

Mrs. Bertha Porter, Williamsport, says her hyacinths are blooming beautifully this spring. They have proved a real temptation to the kids.

Mrs. John Heffner, 158 W. High St., had quite a display of spring blooming bulbs the past week. Her hyacinths were particularly colorful.

The G. H. Armstrongs, Route 1, Laurelville, make a specialty of raising hyacinth bulbs to give to their friends. The hyacinths bloomed later for them this year. They had several in bloom for the Easter breakfast at the Masonic Lodge in Adelphi.

And blooming along with the hyacinths are the daffodils. Mrs. Reginald Blue, Frankfort, helped judge the daffodil show at Huntington, W. Va., this year. This annual show is quite an institution.

DAFFODILS are a specialty of Mrs. Blue. She belongs to the National Daffodil Society and her daughter-in-law, Nina McIlvaine, says it's a beautiful sight to see Mrs. Blue's hillside during daffodil season. It's true. I once visited Mrs. Blue in April.

Miss Mary Shortridge, Jackson Twp., has thousands of daffodils in her naturalized planting. They also are on the hillside.

Mrs. Earl Heffner, 352 E. Franklin, had beautiful before Easter daffodils. She could have had some big bouquets had she wanted them.

Experts say it's helpful to pick daffodils so the bulb does not spend its strength making seed.

Howard Lane, who spends his winters in Arizona, is missing his own display of daffodils. One year he planted hundreds of bulbs along a fence bordering the road. Now they are all in full bloom. We expect he planted almost one eighth of a mile in daffodils.

Poor, poor magnolias! Every year it happens. The frost nips the magnolia soulangeana. And this year Jack Frost gave these lovely flowers a real stiff nipping.

Dr. Ray Carroll has a magnolia tree in the backyard of his office building. This tree has small blossoms (about two or three inches in diameter) and they are a soft pink. In fact it gives the impression of being a pink crabapple when it's blooming.

I SAW THE tree after the frost and I had the impression that the blossoms had withstood the cold. But Dr. Carroll's nurse said this tree, too, suffered from the frost.

The magnolia tree in front of the Stevenson house at 127 W. Union is 114-years-old this year. Maxine Dowler says it was not blooming when the severe frost nipped the other magnolias.

Mrs. Dowler notes that in 1953 there was a big snow on April 15. This so discouraged the magnolia blossoms that instead of opening all at once they bloomed a few at a time all summer.

Roberta Hedges told me to save June 7, because that is the date when the Solagua Garden Club has its annual Rose breakfast. It will be held at the Prairie Lanes Bowling center this year.

The Pickaway County Garden Club is staging its annual flower show June 5. It will be held at the 4-H and Grange Building at the Fairgrounds.

Mrs. Guy Zurmehly, Route 2, says her daffodils are coming right along now.

MRS. ZURMEHLY'S daughter, Mrs. Marion Dawson, also specializes in daffodils.

We asked Mrs. C. W. Hedges if she had a favorite variety of daffodils. She likes the miniatures. She says they are no bigger than a 50-cent piece.

Peggy and Janet Marion of Muttonjerk were busy as could be making a seedbed for flowers. The seeds were those sold by the Pickaway Twp. School kids. The seeds sold by these youngsters are an excellent buy.

Joyce Boldoser of Muttonjerk is the flower gardener in the family. She started her activity this week, too.

There is a bob-tailed tomat at Muttonjerk belonging to the David Marion family. Everybody thought the cat had been in an accident and lost his tail.

But since there's a bob-tailed kitten in the new litter that Howard Johnson has in his garage, it's changed everybody's way of thinking.

MR. J. O. EAGLESON, N. Pickaway St., saved seeds from a lavender zinnia. Mrs. Eagleson has decided to curtail her gardening activities, so she gave the seed to me for my purple garden.

Mrs. Pryor Harmount, Route 1, Kingston, says she never ceases to be excited over the sight of red birds against white snow.

Mrs. John Eshelman said her husband didn't mind dried sumac hanging in the basement, but he was strictly against dried dock.

Mrs. John Mast combined daffodils, poeticus narcissus, tulips and iris, all in one arrangement. It was a lovely thing. And some of the flowers were artificial!

Columbus Region To Hear Hixson On Floral Art

Bill Hixson of Hixson Flowers Incorporated of Lakewood, will be the featured speaker at the Regional Spring Meeting of The Garden Club of Ohio to be held May 8 at the Scioto Country Club in Columbus.

A seasoned artist, Hixson has 14 years experience to his credit, having taught more than 1500 student classes at his studio. Almost half his students are male.

This young decorator, he is in his early thirties, says floral decorations are like paintings, having all the aspects of the arts — color, design, texture and third dimensional form. He feels trends in interior decorating definitely influence floral styling.

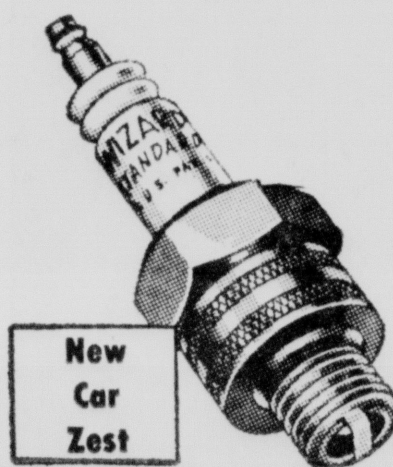

He suggests conditioning flowers in water of about 110 degrees; says it is easier to form pleasing designs with uneven numbers; stresses the importance of foliage and stems; gives pointers on placements of various flower forms; the need of vase, flowers and accessory forming unit rather than an unrelated mass, all of which indicates a helpful, educational and entertaining lecture and demonstration.

Don't trust your memory to remember salient points given by Hixson on the art of flower arranging. Take pencil and notebook and relay his message to members of your garden club unable to attend the meeting. Reservations may be made with Miss Mary Heffner before May 6.

Activities at Bob Thomas Lecture

AUTOGRAPHING THE NEW BOOK — Mrs. Ray Carroll (center), Circleville and Mrs. W. H. Williams, Columbus, watch Author Bob Thomas as he autographs his latest book. Thomas addressed a group of almost 250 arrangers April 4 at the Grange Hall.

Grower Wary Giving Advice on Growing Cyclamen Plants

Mrs. Edward C. Wolf, 237 E. Mound St., is wary about giving a dvice on growing cyclamen plants.

She has a thriving plant which grows in size and beauty each year. She has had it so long she forgets its age — but she believes it to be somewhere between 5 and 7 years-old.

It came from Brehmer Greenhouse as a gift for Christmas. It's blossoming period is from six to eight weeks.

Mrs. Wolf says she keeps it in her big north window and the pot is set on a board which is placed in a bowl of water. In this way the plant gets constant moisture, yet wetness is avoided.

MRS. WOLF does not set herself up as an authority on cyclamen. All she knows is that this particular one responds to the treatment she gives it.

After the plant has finished blooming and the leaves are yellowing she takes it outdoors, turns the pot on its side and places it under her spruce tree. The only moisture it gets is the summer air. In September the cyclamen is brought into the house.

Some years Mrs. Wolf repots the bulb in fresh soil. Sometimes she just adds a small amount of dirt.

She places it in her large north window. Here it receives plenty of light but no direct sun. She keeps it on the board in the bowl of water.

The room in which all Mrs. Wolf's plants live is a cool one. In February the cyclamen starts to bloom.

Mrs. Wolf laughingly admitted that she believed her specimen to be a specially vigorous type. One year a neighbor brought over a cyclamen plant for Mrs. Wolf to care for.

Mrs. Wolf gave it exactly the same treatment as her own but the neighbor's cyclamen did not respond to life on its side under the spruce.

"It took the trip," Mrs. Wolf said, "and mine lived."

Japanese Frown On Competition

Japanese flower shows are never judged.

Arrangers are invited to exhibit. When an arranger arrives at the exhibit hall he is assigned a niche and given floral material and a container.

He makes his arrangement, taking plenty of time. And that's that! A Japanese flower show is an exhibit and not for competition.

Course Three Of Flower Show School Slated

Course III of the Flower Show School sponsored by Garden Club of Ohio, Inc., will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Green Meadows Inn on Route 23 north of Worthington.

While the general public is invited to any or all of the lectures, examination for credit may only be taken by Garden Club of Ohio members.

Area Could Use More Hyacinths

Pickaway County gardeners could make better use of hyacinths than they do. While not rare there are very few if any extensive plantings of hyacinths in this community.

Most plantings of these fragrant colorful bulbs are done in rows. Because they are stiff and prim they lend themselves nicely to the patterned or small formal garden.

In Old Williamsburg, Va., they are to be found in small backyard gardens. But hyacinths can be planted to fine advantage in colonies of one color in the informal flower border.

The modern Dutch hyacinth is large, brilliant in color and very fragrant. Hyacinths are not grown commercially on a large scale anywhere but Holland. Thus the name Dutch hyacinth!

HYACINTHS like a sunny spot in the garden. They prefer rich loam. The best planting time is October.

But if you were lucky enough to have received a potted hyacinth for Easter, simply plant it in your garden now and allow the foliage to die naturally.

Bulbs deteriorate in three years or less. Do not expect the same fine fat stalk of florets the second year. However, the older hyacinths have more grace than the new bulbs.

Hyacinths come in a fine array of colors — purples and lavenders pale pinks and dark pinks, whites and so-called yellows which are in reality deep cream.

Better Lutheran Cooperation Seen

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Theodore F. W. Nickel of Chicago, a vice president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, predicts increased cooperation among Lutherans that will result in a new inter-synodical agency.

The Missouri Synod's national convention here last June authorized negotiations aimed toward participation in an inter-synodical agency to replace the National Lutheran Council.

The plan is expected to be ready for presentation at the next convention in 1965 at Detroit. It also will be ready for ratification by the other bodies — the American Lutheran Church and the United Lutheran Church in America — which meet after that.

Garden Gossip

By MRS. ELIZABETH JONES

Mrs. Bertha Porter, Williamsport, says her hyacinths are blooming beautifully this spring. They have proved a real temptation to the kids.

Mrs. John Heffner, 138 W. High St., had quite a display of spring blooming bulbs the past week. Her hyacinths were particularly colorful.

The G. H. Armstrongs, Route 1, Laurelville, make a specialty of raising hyacinth bulbs to give to their friends. The hyacinths bloomed later for them this year. They had several in bloom for the Easter breakfast at the Masonic Lodge in Adelphi.

And blooming along with the hyacinths are the daffodils. Mrs. Reginald Blue, Frankfort, helped judge the daffodil show at Huntington, W. Va., this year. This annual show is quite an institution.

DAFFODILS are a specialty of Mrs. Blue. She belongs to the National Daffodil Society and her daughter-in-law, Nina McIlvaine, says it's a beautiful sight to see Mrs. Blue's hillside during daffodil season. It's true. I once visited Mrs. Blue in April.

Miss Mary Shortridge, Jackson Twp., has thousands of daffodils in her naturalized planting. They also are on the hillside.

Mrs. Earl Heffner, 352 E. Franklin, had beautiful before Easter daffodils. She could have had some big bouquets had she wanted them.

Experts say it's helpful to pick daffodils so the bulb does not spend its strength making seed.

Howard Lane, who spends his winters in Arizona, is missing his own display of daffodils. One year he planted hundreds of bulbs along a fence bordering the road. Now they are all in full bloom. We expect he planted almost one eighth of a mile in daffodils.

Poor, poor magnolias! Every year it happens. The frost nips the magnolia soulangeana. And this year Jack Frost gave these lovely flowers a real stiff nipping.

Dr. Ray Carroll has a magnolia tree in the backyard of his office building. This tree has small blossoms (about two or three inches in diameter) and they are a soft pink. In fact it gives the impression of being a pink crabapple when it's blooming.

I SAW THE tree after the frost and I had the impression that the blossoms had withstood the cold. But Dr. Carroll's nurse said this tree, too, suffered from the frost.

The magnolia tree in front of the Stevenson house at 127 W. Union is 114-years-old this year. Maxine Dowler says it was not blooming when the severe frost nipped the other magnolias.

Mrs. Dowler notes that in 1953 there was a big snow on April 15. This so discouraged the magnolia blossoms that instead of opening all at once they bloomed a few at a time all summer.

Roberta Hedges told me to save June 7, because that is the date when the Solagua Garden Club has its annual Rose breakfast. It will be held at the Prairie Lanes Bowling center this year.

The Pickaway County Garden Club is staging its annual flower show June 5. It will be held at the 4-H and Grange Building at the Fairgrounds.

Mrs. Guy Zurnehly, Route 2, says her daffodils are coming right along now.

MRS. ZURMEHL'S daughter, Mrs. Marion Dawson, also specializes in daffodils.

We asked Mrs. C. W. Hedges if she had a favorite variety of daffodils. She likes the miniatures. She says they are no bigger than a 50-cent piece.

Peggy and Janet Marion of Muttonjerk were busy as could be making a seedbed for flowers. The seeds were those sold by the Pickaway Twp. School kids. The seeds sold by these youngsters are an excellent buy.

Joyce Boldoser of Muttonjerk is the flower gardener in the family. She started her activity this week, too.

There is a bob-tailed tomat at Muttonjerk belonging to the David Marion family. Everybody thought the cat had been in an accident and lost his tail.

But since there's a bob-tailed kitten in the new litter that Howard Johnson has in his garage, it's changed everybody's way of thinking.

MR. J. O. EAGLESON, N. Pickaway St., saved seeds from a lavender zinnia. Mrs. Eagleson has decided to curtail her gardening activities, so she gave the seed to me for my purple garden.

Mrs. Pryor Harmount, Route 1, Kingston, says she never ceases to be excited over the sight of red birds against white snow.

Mrs. John Eshelman said her husband didn't mind dried sumac hanging in the basement, but he was strictly against dried dock.

Mrs. John Mast combined daffodils, poeticus narcissus, tulips and iris, all in one arrangement. It was a lovely thing. And some of the flowers were artificial!

Columbus Region To Hear Hixson On Floral Art

Bill Hixson of Hixson Flowers Incorporated of Lakewood will be the featured speaker at the Regional Spring Meeting of The Garden Club of Ohio to be held May 8 at the Scioto Country Club in Columbus.

A seasoned artist, Hixson has 14 years experience to his credit, having taught more than 1500 student classes at his studio. Almost half his students are male.

This young decorator, he is in his early thirties, says floral decorations are like paintings, having all the aspects of the arts—color, design, texture and third dimensional form. He feels trends in interior decorating definitely influence floral styling.

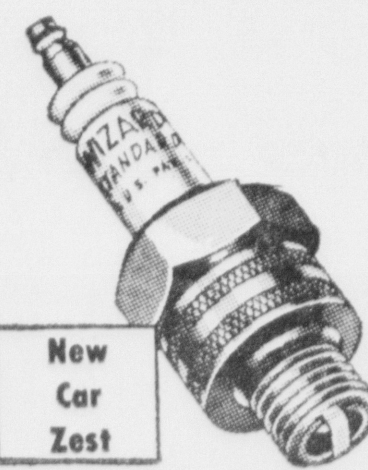

He suggests conditioning flowers in water of about 110 degrees; says it is easier to form pleasing designs with uneven numbers; stresses the importance of foliage and stems; gives pointers on placements of various flower forms; the need of vase, flowers and accessory forming unit rather than an unrelated mass, all of which indicates a helpful, educational and entertaining lecture and demonstration.

Don't trust your memory to remember salient points given by Hixson on the art of flower arranging. Take pencil and notebook and relay his message to members of your garden club unable to attend the meeting. Reservations may be made with Miss Mary Heffner before May 6.

Activities at Bob Thomas Lecture

AUTOGRAPHING THE NEW BOOK — Mrs. Ray Carroll (center), Circleville and Mrs. W. H. Williams, Columbus, watch Author Bob Thomas as he autographs his latest book. Thomas addressed a group of almost 250 arrangers April 4 at the Grange Hall.

VISITORS FROM COLUMBUS — Mrs. W. C. Harrison (left), regional vice president, Columbus region, Garden Club of Ohio, Inc., and Mrs. Orrel Scheaf who heads the Columbus Regional Council attended the lecture and showed considerable interest in the abstract arrangements.

Grower Wary Giving Advice on Growing Cyclamen Plants

Mrs. Edward C. Wolf, 237 E. Mound St., is wary about giving advice on growing cyclamen plants.

She has a thriving plant which grows in size and beauty each year. She has had it so long she forgets its age — but she believes it to be somewhere between 5 and 7 years old.

It came from Brehmer Greenhouse as a gift for Christmas. It's

Bidwell Plant Cutting Capers

Nothing is more interesting to a gardener (indoor or outdoor) than to have a plant that cuts queer capers.

Mrs. Florence Bidwell who lives eight miles west of Circleville on Route 56 has a red geranium and this spring one of the lower branches brought forth a blossom of apple blossom pink. And Mrs. Bidwell considers this very queer carryings-on.

When a mutation like this occurs in the plant world it is called a sport. Biologists speak of it as a mutant. Certainly it is a rare and exciting happening among plants.

We have been told that if a sport is removed from the parent plant and rooted all the characteristics of the sport will remain true.

FOR INSTANCE, should Mrs. Bidwell, remove the sport and root it, the flowers on all the cuttings would be apple blossom pink for ever more.

This is the way new varieties are come by, the experts say. And when it occurs.

blossoming period is from six to eight weeks.

Mrs. Wolf says she keeps it in her big north window and the pot is set on a board which is placed in a bowl of water. In this way the plant gets constant moisture, yet wetness is avoided.

MRS. WOLF does not set her self up as an authority on cyclamen. All she knows is that this particular one responds to the treatment she gives it.

After the plant has finished blooming and the leaves are yellowing she takes it outdoors, turns the pot on its side and places it under her spruce tree. The only moisture it gets is the summer air. In September the cyclamen is brought into the house.

Some years Mrs. Wolf repots the bulb in fresh soil. Sometimes she just adds a small amount of dirt.

She places it in her large north window. Here it receives plenty of light but no direct sun. She keeps it on the board in the bowl of water.

The room in which all Mrs. Wolf's plants live is a cool one. In February the cyclamen starts to bloom.

Mrs. Wolf laughingly admitted that she believed her specimen to be a specially vigorous type. One year a neighbor brought over a cyclamen plant for Mrs. Wolf to care for.

Mrs. Wolf gave it exactly the same treatment as her own but the neighbor's cyclamen did not respond to life on its side under the spruce.

"It took the trip," Mrs. Wolf said, "and mine lived."

Japanese Frown On Competition

Japanese flower shows are never judged.

Arrangers are invited to exhibit. When an arranger arrives at the exhibit hall he is assigned a niche and given floral material and a container.

He makes his arrangement, taking plenty of time. And that's that! A Japanese flower show is an exhibit and not for competition.

Youth Baseball Program Needs Nine Managers

A total of nine team managers are needed in the Circleville Youth Baseball Program, it was announced today by Forrest Brown, secretary of the organization.

The Little League minors have five teams without leaders, while three teams in the Babe Ruth League and one in the Mosquito League are in need of baseball mentors.

Brown said interested persons may contact Chet Iery for the Babe Ruth positions and Roy Farmer or Willard Congrove for the Little League minor and Mosquito league positions.

Saturday and April 27 have been set as try out dates for Little League minor players who will graduate into the majors this year.

THEY WILL be held from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. at the Ted Lewis Park.

Seventy boys who played last year in the Little League minors have not yet registered. Brown noted that registrations will be accepted at the Park during the tryouts.

Babe Ruth registrations are being conducted at the Ohio National Guard Armory on E. Franklin St. Chet Iery announced he will accept registrations by phone or in person.

Sponsor chairman Dick Tootle told the Tuesday meeting of the Board of Directors that all of last year's sponsors with the exception of one are again sponsoring teams.

Grounds chairman, George Helwagen reported on the work yet to be done to get the coming seasons in shape for the various seasons.

Bob Wood, treasurer, told the group the insurance committee decided to purchase insurance from the Paul Brown Agency after reviewing quotations of costs from several agencies.

Mike Harrison was authorized by the board of proceed with equipment purchases.

Other Leagues Slam Door On Suspended Pro Gridders

NEW YORK (AP)—Professional football on both sides of the border slammed its doors today on two suspended stars of the National Football League and rallied behind NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle in his smashing blow at gambling influences.

A penitent Paul Hornung and an outraged Alex Karras, two of the sport's biggest names caught in the web of the latest sports scandal, apparently were left with no recourse except possible future forgiveness of the league—not earlier than 1964.

The rival American League, battling the NFL for the spectator dollar, and the Canadian League, a refuge for ousted American players in the past, said they have no place for the two players accused of wagering on games.

"Under no circumstances will they be permitted to play in the American Football League until their suspensions are lifted," Joe Foss, commissioner of the AFL, said in a formal statement in Dallas.

Sidney Halter, commissioner of the Canadian League, said: "I would refuse to register any contract submitted by a CFL club with a suspended player."

Hornung, halfback and frequent scoring leader of the champion Green Bay Packers, and Karras, 250-pound tackle of the Detroit Lions, drew indefinite suspensions Wednesday in a sweeping action by Rozelle that also levied $2,000 fines for five other Detroit players and a $4,000 penalty against the Detroit club.

Hornung and Karras were accused of making bets on games, usually in the $50 to $200 range, over a period of years. The commissioner said there was no evidence of any so-called "fixes." That is, they were not found to have bet against their own club, sold information to gamblers or shaved points.

The other five players, each fined $2,000 for betting $50 apiece on Green Bay to beat the New York Giants in the 1962 playoff game, were: John Gordy, guard; Gary Lowe, defensive back; Joe Schmidt, all-league middle line-backer; Wayne Walker, line-backer; and Sam Williams, defensive end, all of the Lions.

Detroit was fined for failing to take proper action on undesirable associations reported by police.

Rozelle, in announcing the result of extensive investigations which included 52 separate interviews, emphasized "there is no evidence that any NFL player has given less than his best in playing any game."

He made it clear, however, that he will not tolerate gambling of any sort in the league nor permit association of players with characters who might create public suspicion. In this stand, he had virtually the unanimous support of the league directors, his bosses.

Hornung, 27, a handsome bachelor who might double as a matinee idol, was subdued and humble when he received the news at his home in Louisville.

"I did wrong," he said. "I should be penalized. I just have to stay with it."

He said he does not plan an appeal from the suspension. He indicated he will work toward a review of his case and ultimate reinstatement—which isn't possible, Rozelle said, before next year.

The former Notre Dame star leading scorer in the NFL in 1959, 1960 and 1961 and most valuable player in 1961, said all his bets were of the social variety.

"They were made with friends, strictly sporting," he added. "I always gave 100 per cent of every game I played in." He said he probably made eight or nine bets, $100 and $200 each.

Rozelle said Hornung's betting habits stemmed from his acquaintance with a West Coast businessman whom Hornung met in 1956 in San Francisco. Investigation showed Hornung placed several bets through this friend, the commissioner added, saying in one year the triple threat halfback made $1,500.

Karras' reaction to the suspension was entirely different.

"It comes as a shock to me," the big lineman, also 27, a one-time All-America at Iowa, said at his home in Detroit. "I haven't done anything I am ashamed of and I am not guilty of anything."

He said he had hired an attorney and planned to fight the league action. However, he could not hide his pessimism. He said he figured the ban is for life and that he and a group of friends are going ahead with plans to operate a Detroit bar.

Rozelle said Karras had made at least six bets since 1958 through a business associate. The commissioner said that the bets were for $50 until last year when the Detroit tackle bet $100 on the Lions to beat Green Bay on Thanksgiving Day—which they did—and $100 on the Packers against the Giants in the title game, won by Green Bay 16-7.

Karras was called on the carpet by Rozelle in mid-January after he had revealed in a television interview that he sometimes bet on games. He was accused by Detroit police of associating with "known hoodlums."

Among the NFL owners, the only discordant note on Rozelle's action—and it was a mild one—was voiced by William Clay Ford, president of the Lions.

He said the Lions will comply fully with the commissioner's order but added: "Compliance does not mean that we agree with the nature or extent of the penalties imposed."

Rozelle, 37, indicated that his office had no further evidence of irregularities.

Asked about Rick Casares, Chicago Bears' fullback whose name had been mentioned in investigations, he said: "The league had found no evidence to support such charges." He said a probe of allegations that Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Baltimore Colts, bet on games is not completed.

This is the first big scandal to hit the NFL since the 1946 championship game between the New York Giants and Chicago Bears.

Merle Hapes, a Giant halfback, was suspended for not reporting a conversation with a gambler under investigation for game-fixing. Later, Frank F. Hock, the Giants' quarterback, also was suspended.

5 Harness, 2 Quarter Horse Races Set at Spring Matinee

Circleville Harness horse fans will see a total of 28 locally trained horses in five races Sunday at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds. As an added attraction there will be two races of western quarter horses.

Quarter horse racing, long popular in all western states, is fast gaining widespread interest in Ohio and has been included as part of the Pickaway County Fair slate this year.

The increased popularity of the short distance runners was manifested last Sunday when nearly 200 persons turned out to watch a match race between El Zant owned by Howard Frazier and Fiddle Mark, owned by Carl Shelpman.

Horses from a three-state area are expected to perform in the exhibitions Sunday. Entries have not been announced as yet. The races are for distances of 220 and 400 yards.

THE FIRST harness race is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p. m. It will be the 2-year-old pace. The conditioned trot and the conditioned pace will then be held, followed by the first of the quarter horse exhibitions.

The harness card will be completed with another 2-year-old pace and a conditioned pace and trot.

The day's events will be capped with the final quarter horse race. The spring matinee is sponsored annually by the Pickaway County Agricultural Society. Proceeds are used for improvements at the local oval.

Should the event be rained out, Sunday April 28 has been set as the alternate date.

Here are entries for the harness races.

ANOTHER HUDEPOHL SPORTS PRESENTATION

That's my opinion ...what's yours?

BY ED KENNEDY

Whether professional boxing is a sport worth saving, or even a sport, remains debatable. Boxing has been plagued with incidents associated with shady characters, rigged decisions, pre-arranged KO's and, too often, stark tragedy.

It might be one of the strange developments of sport that boxing be saved or granted a stay of execution by the British. The British love boxing, although they must go back to Tommy Farr to find a worthy really to be proud of, Randy Turpin notwithstanding. The rest of modern British boxing is enclosed in the parentheses formed by the buckling legs of those reluctant tigers, Faintin' Phil Scott and Brian London. Yet the Limey appreciates the smell of rosin and the thud of leather, and some great crowds have cheered the action at Harringay and Wembley.

"Thud of leather" may actually be what the doctor ordered. Mounting fatalities and crippling injuries have brought boxing to the brink of being outlawed. In this country one move to save it is a recommendation to use 10 oz. gloves in all but title bouts and 6 ounces in those. The British say, "Why the distinction? It doesn't quite make sense." But beyond that they insist on 4 oz. gloves!

The implication is that there is more danger of having your brains scrambled by being pummeled by punches that don't really sting than there is in being KO'd posthaste by a fist wrapped only enough to be felt by both the puncher and the "punchee".

There may be an encyclopedia of medical testimony yet to be weighed, but it's possible that the British may save boxing from being buffeted out of existence by 10-ounce pillows which don't help induce sleep quickly enough. That's my opinion . . . What's yours?????

Youth Baseball Program Needs Nine Managers

A total of nine team managers are needed in the Circleville Youth Baseball Program. It was announced today by Forrest Brown, secretary of the organization.

The Little League minors have five teams without leaders, while three teams in the Babe Ruth League and one in the Mosquito League are in need of baseball mentors.

Brown said interested persons may contact Chet Jery for the Babe Ruth positions and Roy Parmer or Willard Congrove for the Little League minor and Mosquito league positions.

Saturday and April 27 have been set as try out dates for Little League minor players who will graduate into the majors this year.

THEY WILL be held from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. at the Ted Lew- is Park.

Seventy boys who played last year in the Little League minors have not yet registered. Brown noted that registrations will be accepted at the Park during the tryouts.

Babe Ruth registrations are being conducted at the Ohio National Guard Armory on E. Franklin St. Chet Jery announced he will accept registrations by phone or in person.

Sponsor chairman Dick Tootle told the Tuesday meeting of the Board of Directors that all of last year's sponsors with the exception of one are again sponsoring teams.

Grounds chairman, George Helwagen reported on the work yet to be done to get the various diamonds in shape for the coming season.

Bob Wood, treasurer, told the group the insurance committee decided to purchase insurance from the Paul Brown Agency after reviewing quotations of costs from several agencies.

Mike Harrison was authorized by the board of proceed with equipment purchases.

Other Leagues Slam Door On Suspended Pro Gridders

NEW YORK (AP)—Professional football on both sides of the border slammed its doors today on two suspended stars of the National Football League and rallied behind NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle in his smashing blow at gambling influences.

A penitent Paul Hornung and an outraged Alex Karras, two of the sport's biggest names caught in the web of the latest sports scandal, apparently were left with no recourse except possible future forgiveness of the league—not earlier than 1964.

The rival American League, battling the NFL for the spectator dollar, and the Canadian League, a refuge for ousted American players in the past, said they have no place for the two players accused of wagering on games.

"Under no circumstances will they be permitted to play in the American Football League until their suspensions are lifted," Joe Foss, commissioner of the AFL, said in a formal statement in Dal- las.

Sidney Halter, commissioner of the Canadian League, said: "I would refuse to register any contract submitted by a CFL club with a suspended player."

Hornung, halfback and frequent scoring leader of the champion Green Bay Packers, and Karras, 250-pound tackle of the Detroit Lions, drew indefinite suspensions Wednesday in a sweeping action by Rozelle that also levied $2,000 fines for five other Detroit players and a $4,000 penalty against the Detroit club.

Hornung and Karras were ac- cused of making bets on games, usually in the $50 to $200 range, over a period of years. The com- missioner said there was no evi- dence of any so-called "fixes." That is, they were not found to have bet against their own club, sold information to gamblers or shaved points.

The other five players, each fined $2,000 for betting $50 apiece on Green Bay to beat the New York Giants in the 1962 playoff game, were: John Gordy, guard; Gary Lowe, defensive back; Joe Schmidt, all-league middle line- backer; Wayne Walker, line- backer; and Sam Williams, defen- sive end, all of the Lions.

Detroit was fined for failing to take proper action on undesirable associations reported by police.

Rozelle, in announcing the re- sult of extensive investigations which included 52 separate inter- views, emphasized "there is no evidence that any NFL player has given less than his best in playing any game."

He made it clear, however, that he will not tolerate gambling of any sort in the league nor permit association of players with characters who might create pub- lic suspicion. In this stand, he had virtually the unanimous sup- port of the league directors, his bosses.

Hornung, 27, a handsome bache- lor who might double as a matinee idol, was subdued and humble when he received the news at his home in Louisville.

"I did wrong," he said. "I should be penalized. I just have to stay with it."

He said he does not plan an appeal from the suspension. He indicated he will work toward a review of his case and ultimate reinstatement—which isn't pos- sible, Rozelle said, before next year.

The former Notre Dame star leading scorer in the NFL in 1959, 1960 and 1961 and most valuable player in 1961, said all his bets were of the sociable variety.

"They were made with friends, strictly sporting," he added. "I al- ways gave 100 per cent of every game I played in." He said he probably made eight or nine bets, $100 and $200 each.

Rozelle said Hornung's betting habits stemmed from his acquaint- ance with a West Coast business- man whom Hornung met in 1956 in San Francisco. Investigation showed Hornung placed several bets through this friend, the commissioner added, saying in one year the triple threat halfback made $1,500.

Karras' reaction to the suspen- sion was entirely different.

"It comes as a shock to me," the big lineman, also 27, a one- time All-America at Iowa, said at his home in Detroit. "I haven't done anything I am ashamed of and I am not guilty of anything."

He said he had hired an attor- ney and planned to fight the league action. However, he could not hide his pessimism. He said he figured the ban is for life and that he and a group of friends are going ahead with plans to operate a Detroit bar.

Rozelle said Karras had made at least six bets since 1958 through a business associate. The commis- sioner said that th. bets were for $50 until last year when the De- troit tackle bet $100 on the Lions to beat Green Bay on Thanksgiving Day—which they did—and $100 on the Packers against the Giants in the title game, won by Green Bay 16-7.

Karras was called on the car- pet by Rozelle in mid-January af- ter he had revealed in a television interview that he sometimes bet on games. He was accused by De- troit police of associating with "known hoodlums."

Among the NFL owners, the only discordant note on Rozelle's action—and it was a mild one—was voiced by William Clay Ford, president of the Lions.

He said the Lions will comply fully with the commissioner's or- der but added: "Compliance does not mean that we agree with the nature or extent of the penalties imposed."

Rozelle, 37, indicated that his office had no further evidence of irregularities.

Asked about Rick Casares, Chi- cago Bears' fullback whose name had been mentioned in investiga- tions, he said: "The league had found no evidence to support such charges." He said a probe of al- legations that Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Baltimore Colts, bet on games is not completed.

This is the first big scandal to hit the NFL since the 1946 cham- pionship game between the New York Giants and Chicago Bears. Merle Hapes, a Giant halfback, was suspended for not report- ing a conversation with a gambler under investigation for game-fixing. Later, Frank F. Hock, the Giants' quarterback, also was suspended.

5 Harness, 2 Quarter Horse Races Set at Spring Matinee

Circleville Harness horse fans will see a total of 28 locally trained horses in five races Sunday at the Pickaway County Fair grounds. As an added attraction there will be two races of western quarter horses.

Quarter horse racing, long pop- ular in all western states, is fast gaining widespread interest in Ohio and has been included as part of the Pickaway County Fair slate this year.

The increased popularity of the short distance runners was mani- fested last Sunday when nearly 200 persons turned out to watch a match race between El Zant owned by Howard Frazier and Fiddle Mark, owned by Carl Shelman.

Horses from a three-state area are expected to perform in the ex- hibitions Sunday. Entries have not been announced as yet. The races are for distances of 220 and 400 yards.

THE FIRST harness race is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p. m. It will be the 2-year-old pace. The conditioned trot and the condition- ed pace will then be held, followed by the first of the quarter horse exhibitions.

The harness card will be com- pleted with another 2-year- old pace and a conditioned pace and trot.

The day's events will be capped with the final quarter horse race.

The spring matinee is spon- sored annually by the Pickaway County Agricultural Society. Proceeds are used for improve- ments at the local oval.

Should the event be rained out, Sunday April 28 has been set as the alternate date.

Here are entries for the har- ness races.

That's my opinion ...what's yours?

BY ED KENNEDY

Whether professional boxing is a sport worth saving, or even a sport, remains debatable. Boxing has been plagued with incidents associated with shady characters, rigged decisions, pre-arranged KO's and, too often, stark tragedy.

It might be one of the strange developments of sport that boxing be saved or granted a stay of execution by the British. The British love boxing, although they must go back to Tommy Farr to find a worthy really to be proud of. Randy Turpin notwithstanding. The rest of modern British boxing is enclosed in the parentheses formed by the buckling legs of those reluctant tigers, Faintin' Phil Scott and Brian London. Yet the Limey appreciates the smell of rosin and the thud of leather, and some great crowds have cheered the action at Harringay and Wembley.

"Thud of leather" may actually be what the doctor ordered. Mounting fatalities and crippling injuries have brought boxing to the brink of being outlawed. In this country one move to save it is a recommendation to use 10 oz. gloves in all but title bouts and 6 ounces in those. The British say, "Why the distinction? It doesn't quite make sense." But beyond that they insist on 4 oz. gloves!

The implication is that there is more danger of having your brains scrambled by being pummeled by punches that don't really sting than there is in being KO'd posthaste by a fist wrapped only enough to be felt by both the puncher and the "punchee."

There may be an encyclopedia of medical testimony yet to be weighed, but it's possible that the British may save boxing from being buffeted out of existence by 10-ounce pillows which don't help induce sleep quickly enough. That's my opinion . . . What's yours?????

Braves Win Dual Cinder Meet at A-C

Stant Breaks Own School Record in The 880-Yard Run

The Logan Elm track team yesterday downed host school Amanda-Clearcreek, 63-55, in a dual meet.

Each school earned seven wins. But Logan Elm came through with eight second place finishes while the Aces could cop only four to provide the winning margin.

Bob Stant, sophomore 880-yard runner for the Braves, broke his own school record of 2:19.9 he set last week in the first meet of the season. The young middle distance performer went the route in 2:15.5 on the Amanda cinders.

Freshman Bob Clifton heaved the shot more than 42 feet, but had to accept second place honors as Danny Hicks won with a toss of 43 feet 7 1/2-inches on his last attempt.

The Braves made a clean sweep of pole vault, with Jeff Lutz clearing the bar at 9 feet 9-inches to win. Shaw and Hatzro placing second and third.

The winning 880-yard relay team was composed of Mike Clifton, Louis Jordan, Gary Hardman and Jim Martindale.

Friday the Braves host Paint Valley. Coach Keith Merrin is currently trying to schedule another team at the meet to make it a triangular match.

Wednesday Laurelville and Williamsport will provide the competition at the Braves track. The Scioto Valley Conference meet will be held April 29 at Piketon. Uniotio is the defending champion.

Final plans were made for a spring tour to Kingwood Center at Mansfield when the Pickaway County Farm Bureau Women's Committee met this week.

The visit has been set for April 30. Members of the committee will leave Circleville at 8 a. m., eat lunch at 11:30 a. m. and arrive in Mansfield at approximately 1 p. m.

Historically, Kingwood Center was established by a trust created by the late Charles Kelley King for the development and maintenance of a historical center for benefit of all people.

Kingwood covers an area of 47 acres including display gardens, nature trails, wildlife exhibits, greenhouses and buildings of an unusually attractive French Provincial style architecture.

MARY CLARK, chairman, urged committee women to inform all the ladies in their respective advisory council groups and all other F. B. women of the tour. Reservations are to be completed by April 25.

Also discussed was the possibility of conducting a rural urban farm tour. The purpose would be to better inform urban ladies of the overhead and the complexities involved in farming in the 60s.

The committee decided that this tour would be conducted in June.

Scout Camp Discussed at Local Meeting

An introduction to Camp Greenhills, the Central Ohio Council's new Boy Scout and Explorer camp near Logan, was presented at a meeting this week in the Grange and 4-H Building at the Fairgrounds.

Paul Handel, council scout executive, spoke on the "Philosophy of Greenhills". Slides denoting building progress at the camp were shown.

It was announced that the camp will be open June 23 to July 20. An additional open week of July 21-28 and possibly the week following also has been scheduled.

In six days and nights or more of camping at Greenhills, each scout learns the importance of a properly pitched tent, comfortable bedding and the ability to prepare food. He learns the necessity of accepting and carrying out his share of duties while at camp. Visitors are welcome at Greenhills during the camping season, local scout officials pointed out. Arrangements may be made with an individual unit.

Braves Win Dual Cinder Meet at A-C

Stant Breaks Own School Record in The 880-Yard Run

The Logan Elm track team yesterday downed host school Amanda-Clearcreek, 63-55, in a dual meet.

Each school earned seven wins. But Logan Elm came through with eight second place finishes while the Aces could copy only four to provide the winning margin.

Freshman Bob Clifton heaved the shot more than 42 feet, but had to accept second place honors as Danny Hicks won with a toss of 43 feet 7 1/2-inches on his last attempt.

The Braves made a clean sweep of pole vault, with Jeff Lutz clearing the bar at 9 feet 9-inches to win. Shaw and Hatz placing second and third.

The winning 880-yard relay team was composed of Mike Clifton, Louis Jordan, Gary Hardman and Jim Martindale.

Friday the Braves host Paint Valley. Coach Keith Merrin is currently trying to schedule another team at the meet to make it a triangular match.

Wednesday Laurelville and Williamsport will provide the competition at the Braves track. The Scioto Valley Conference meet will be held April 29 at Piketon. Unionio is the defending champion.

Plans Complete For FB Tour At Kingwood

Final plans were made for a spring tour to Kingwood Center at Mansfield when the Pickaway County Farm Bureau Women's Committee met this week.

The visit has been set for April 30. Members of the committee will leave Circleville at 8 a. m., eat lunch at 11:30 a. m. and arrive in Mansfield at approximately 1 p. m.

Historically, Kingwood Center was established by a trust created by the late Charles Kelley King for the development and maintenance of a historical center for benefit of all people.

Kingwood covers an area of 47 acres including display gardens, nature trails, wildlife exhibits, greenhouses and buildings of an unusually attractive French Provincial style architecture.

MARY CLARK, chairman, urged committee women to inform all the ladies in their respective advisory council groups and all other F. B. women of the tour. Reservations are to be completed by April 25.

Also discussed was the possibility of conducting a rural urban farm tour. The purpose would be to better inform urban ladies of the overhead and the complexities involved in farming in the 60s.

The committee decided that this tour would be conducted in June.

Art League Meet Attended By 13 Members

Thirteen members and one guest were present for a recent meeting of the Circleville Art League in the home of Mrs. Pauline Schiff, Ashville.

Mrs. Agnes Burmaster was appointed chairman of the exhibit at the County Fair, with Miss Martha Ried named co-chairman.

MISS MONTELIUS presented a talk on modern art and the trends of the day. A discussion followed.

Members of the Circleville Art League who won awards at the Chillicothe show were: Mrs. Gene Kuhns, grand prize for an oil painting, and third for a pastel; Mrs. Orin Webb, second for an oil; Mrs. Ursula Wolf, third in oils; and Mrs. Harry Montelius, first and second in water colors.

In a recent exhibit in Columbus Mrs. Katherine Morehead won second prize with an oil painting.

One of the works of Mrs. Otis Runyon has been selected by the Columbus Art League to be exhibited at a show scheduled May 3 in the Columbus art gallery.
